ABSTRACT

Developed by an instructional materials center, this teaching guide was prepared for use in high school homemaking courses I-IV. Teaching suggestions are included for Homemaking I which emphasize developing an appreciation of self through understanding of one's basic needs, while the focus for Homemaking II is concerned with self in groups and self in the future, including a study of successful dating techniques. Homemaking III is directed toward developing a personal philosophy of life and home, whereas Homemaking IV deals with self in the community as a married or single person. Also included is an outline for a one or two semester course on home and family living which covers these areas plus other aspects of family living and family management. The guide is arranged in outline format and identifies concepts, subconcepts, behavioral objectives, job opportunities, and learning and evaluation experiences. A bibliography of various resource materials is provided. (JS)

DESCRIPTION OF HOME ECONOMICS INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS CENTER

The Home Economics Instructional Materials Center was established September 1, 1967, as a continuing project. It is a cooperative project between Homemaking Education in the Texas Education Agency, and the College of Home Economics, Home Economics Education Department, Texas Tech University at Lubbock, Texas. The instructional materials which are being developed at the Center are intended to assist teachers and coordinators in promoting and teaching home economics gainful employment programs or homemaking education.

To provide a background of information for the establishment of the Home Economics Instructional Materials Center, a Planning Grant Project was approved by the Texas Education Agency for February 1 through August 31, 1967. The major purposes of the Planning Grant Project were (1) to assemble and catalog an occupational reference library, (2) to develop procedural steps for preparation of instructional materials, and (3) to illustrate the first sequence of these steps, that is, to develop job analyses and to list competencies needed for employability of students.

The present major objectives of the Home Economics Instructional Materials Center are (1) to develop instructional materials designed for use by students enrolled in cooperative part-time training programs and in pre-employment laboratory training programs in preparation for employment in occupations requiring home economics knowledge and skills, (2) to develop materials in homemaking education, and (3) to develop at a later time materials designed for use in home and community service programs.

Acknowledgement is given to:

Mrs. Elizabeth F. Smith, Director, Homemaking Education, Texas Education Agency, who conceived the original plan for establishing the Center and continues to determine ways in which the Center can meet the needs of Homemaking Education in Texas.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This subject area guide for Family Living, prepared by the Home Economics Instructional Materials Center at Texas Tech University, is the result of the combined efforts and ideas of many people, namely:

Mrs. Joyce Burlison, Palestine, Texas, and Mrs. Jane Carter, Plainview, Texas, home economics teachers, who spent a month at the Center helping with the writing of the family living instructional materials.

Mrs. Helen Westlake, Wheaton, Illinois, an experienced high school teacher and author of Relationships, A Study in Human Behavior, who served as subject-matter specialist in family living.

Mrs. Virginia Thompson, Lubbock, Texas, who designed the cover for the guide.

Mrs. Laura Fainter, Mrs. Luanna Price, and Mrs. Elaine Ybarra, Graduate Research Assistants, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas, who helped with the development of this subject area guide.

Homemaking Education State Staff, Texas Education Agency, and the Homemaking Teachers of Texas attending the 1971 State In-Service Education Conference who reviewed the original materials and assisted in the final editing.

PREFACE

Because our entire society is built around the family as its most basic unit, each individual must learn to function effectively as a family member. However, current periodicals emphasize our concern with family breakdown through divorce and marital problems which affect the family, such as alcoholism, drug addiction, mental illness, and personality problems. For these reasons learning to relate to others more intelligently makes the study of family living extremely relevant in today's curriculum. Thus family living is a subject of basic importance in the study of homemaking.

In our society, the family provides a setting for socialization; economic security; material necessities; and transmission of values, protection, and affection. The adolescent is engaged in a struggle to find his own identity and to establish independence from his family. Helping students to understand themselves and others, to live happily as family members, and to develop an increasing sense of community responsibility are major objectives of this subject area guide.

Homemaking I is concerned with developing an appreciation of self through understanding of one's basic needs; personality development; popularity; and values, standards and goals. Appreciation of others is developed through a study of family, friends, dates, community, and techniques for getting along with others.

Homemaking II deals with appreciation of self, self in groups, and self in the future. Appreciation of self is developed through an understanding of character development and maturity. Study of family and friends and additional techniques for relating to others contributes to a realistic concept of self in groups. The Homemaking II student begins to look at himself in the future through study of techniques for developing successful dating relationships.

Homemaking III is focused on more advanced aspects of appreciation of self through study of the self theory and developing a personal philosophy of life. Self in groups is studied through the functions, life cycle, interaction, values, standards and goals of the family and a view of the individual's roles in the community. The student looks further into the future to preparation for successful relationships in marriage and preparation for successful relationships as an individual.

Homemaking IV emphasizes self in the future and self in the community. Additional aspects of love relationships and preparation for successful relationships in marriage are included with a unit on preparation for successful relationships as a single person. The individual in the community is involved in marriage, parenthood, coping with family stresses and crises, and interacting within the social structure. The interrelationship of culture and the family, and the impact of change on the family are also included in the study of self in the community.

The Home and Family Living Course, a one or two semester course, covers the four big areas of appreciation of self, self in groups, self in the future, and self in the community. This course should also include the following topics: family as managers and consumers, children in the family food for the family, clothing the family, and housing the family.

In an effort to place greater emphasis on career and job opportunities in all phases of homemaking, a unit is included in each sequence course and in the semester course relating family living to career and job opportunities.

FAMILY LIVING GUIDE

Family Living is one of six subject area guides being developed for use in high school homemaking programs in Texas. Additional guides are being prepared in the areas of Home Management and Consumer Education, Child Development, Housing, Food and Nutrition, and Clothing and Textiles.

Contents of the Guide

Each subject area guide is closely correlated with the Conceptual Framework for Homemaking Education in Texas. The Framework was used as a basis for developing behavioral objectives, generalizations, and learning and evaluation experiences for each subject area guide.

Each guide has colored dividers to indicate Homemaking I, II, III, IV and the Semester Course as follows:

Homemaking I	-	yellow
Homemaking II	-	orange
Homemaking III	-	green
Homemaking IV	-	pink
Semester Course	-	blue

Each large concept within a level begins on a new page. An overall objective for that concept is stated in behavioral terms to indicate what the student should be able to do when he has completed the unit.

Subconcepts related to the large concept are underlined. Generalizations help give meaning to the subconcepts by summarizing or relating ideas presented.

Behavioral objectives show outcomes which should result from successful completion of the learning and evaluation experiences. The letter in parentheses at the end of the objective indicates the level in the cognitive domain at which the objective is stated as follows: (K) Knowledge, (C) Comprehension, (Ap) Application, (An) Analysis, (S) Synthesis, and (E) Evaluation. When objectives at more than one level might be written for a learning experience, only the higher level objective is given.

Learning and evaluation experiences are provided to suggest ways each concept might be taught using a variety of teaching methods and techniques. Many of the suggested experiences may be used to evaluate the student's progress toward the objectives of the unit.

Numerous coordinating experiences were developed to illustrate ways of coordinating each concept with home practice, home experiences, FHA, and community activities. These experiences are designed to coordinate the total homemaking education program by giving students additional learning experiences and opportunities to use what they have learned in various situations.

How to Use the Guide

The subject area guides are designed to aid the teacher in understanding the concerns of high school students and the concepts that would be appropriate at each grade level. They are not designed for use in any particular community. The teacher will need to use her own initiative, imagination, and creativity in working cooperatively with students, parents, school, and community to develop an effective homemaking education program. The subject area guides are intended to guide, not dictate, the content of high school homemaking courses.

The teacher is not expected to use all the suggested experiences given in this guide with one class. She may adapt, supplement, and expand the suggestions in view of the specific needs, interests, abilities, backgrounds, and levels of maturity of her students. The variety of experiences included should enable the teacher to select and assign those teaching-learning experiences that will help her students reach the objectives important to them.

Schools which do not offer Homemaking IV should consider combining Homemaking III and IV to form a meaningful Homemaking III course by incorporation concepts from both courses to meet students' needs effectively.

The subject area guide should be a valuable aid in local program planning and curriculum planning.

Program Planning

Effective program planning for homemaking education in the local community involves: (1) understanding the community, (2) understanding human growth and development, and (3) cooperative planning.

Understanding the Community. Planning and carrying out an effective homemaking education program requires that the teacher understand the community in which students and their families live. A study of social, economic, and cultural conditions in the community should contribute to this understanding. Such a study involves determining the representative types of home and family backgrounds and appraising community attitudes, prejudices, values, industries, practices, resources, and power structure. Because patterns of home and community life largely determine the needs and interests of individuals, knowledge of the community can bring into focus the problems of everyday living and can serve as a basis for curriculum planning.

Understanding Human Growth and Development. The development of the individual from birth throughout life is characterized by the occurrence of certain tasks at each stage of development. Understanding these tasks and the characteristics of youth related to them is an important part of program planning in homemaking education.

Knowledge of the developmental tasks has several implications for the teacher. The tasks indicate the types of problems for which students must seek solutions. The teacher must realize that individuals of the same chronological age are not necessarily in the same stage of development. Because tasks arise at or about a given time in the student's life, however, she should be able to anticipate the teachable moment and to provide learning experiences which will meet the needs, interests, and abilities of students.

Cooperative Planning. Planning the homemaking education program cooperatively with students, parents, teachers, administrators, and others in the community has been shown to result in more effective learning and a better curriculum than would be possible in a program designed by the teacher alone. Students, parents, and community members may be involved in planning through questionnaires, planning groups, and advisory committees. Professionally trained persons, including the school principal, other homemaking teachers, teachers in other subject areas, guidance personnel, and local and area supervisors also provide essential contributions to program planning. When preliminary plans have been developed, the teacher will want to discuss program planning with her students to provide greater insight into their special needs and interests.

Curriculum Planning

Concepts and Generalizations. Curriculum planning for the local homemaking education program involves using knowledge of the community, understanding of human growth and development, and results of cooperative planning to identify concepts and generalizations which provide opportunities for relevant and lasting learning. A concept may be defined as "an abstraction representing the world of objects and events as a means of organizing them into categories."<sup>1</sup> Meaning is given to concepts by generalizing from experiences which occur over a period of time. A generalization is a complete thought which "expresses an underlying truth has an element of universality, and usually indicates relationships."<sup>2</sup> Generalizations help give meaning to concepts and should be applicable in a number of situations. A number of generalizations are needed to develop a single concept. To help students formulate generalizations the teacher should provide learning experiences which require students to describe, define, analyze, identify, classify, relate, explain, justify, interpret, and predict.

Behavioral Objective. Concepts and generalizations are used to plan appropriate behavioral objectives and learning experiences which students must have in order to develop reliable and expanded concepts. A behavioral objective is measureable behavior that is expected to result from successful completion of designated learning experiences. In order to educate the total student, objectives should be provided at all levels of the cognitive, affective, and psychomotor domains of the taxonomy of educational objectives.

Learning Experiences. Learning experiences should be selected to enable students to achieve each behavioral objective. Learning experiences in homemaking education may be provided through classroom, home, community, and Future Homemakers of America. Students' interests are more easily sustained if a variety of experiences are provided for learning by seeing, hearing, feeling, and doing.

Evaluation. Evaluation determines the extent to which a group or class has achieved behavioral objectives and indicates the effectiveness of the teacher and the curriculum. Effective evaluation is a continuous process which involves determining behavioral objectives, collecting evidence on behavior changes, interpreting the evidence collected, and using the evidence to improve the curriculum, teaching, and guidance. Methods of evaluation include paper-and-pencil tests, oral tests, performance tests, check sheets and inventories, score cards, rating scales, behavior records, and observations.

TAXONOMY OF EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

Levels of Learning

Recent trends in homemaking education call for objectives which indicate exactly what changes in behavior should be expected from students. Such objectives may be developed and arranged in order of complexity according to the Taxonomy of Educational Objectives, a system for classifying behavioral objectives.

The Taxonomy of Educational Objectives is divided into three categories, called domains. These are the cognitive domain (thinking), the affective domain (feeling), and the psychomotor domain (doing). Each domain is then divided into a hierarchy of levels from least complex to most complex. Students must reach objectives which are least complex in a domain before they are able to master more complex objectives. To reach objectives at each level students must have mastered learning at all the levels below.

The cognitive domain deals with knowledge and information and is divided into six levels of learning:<sup>1</sup> knowledge, comprehension, application, analysis, synthesis, and evaluation. Each of these is explained more fully on page 9. The hierarchal aspect of the cognitive domain is illustrated in the following example: Students must know and understand basic facts about nutrition before they can apply them in planning nutritious family meals.

The affective domain which deals with attitudes and appreciation is divided into five levels of learning:<sup>2</sup> receiving, responding, valuing, organization and characterization. These levels are explained on page 10. The hierarchy in this domain may be illustrated as follows: A student must be receptive and responsive to maintaining good health before he values having good health, relates health to personal appearance, or allows his desire for good health to direct his behavior to the point that he chooses nutritious meals and snacks and tries to get plenty of rest.

Levels of learning included in the psychomotor domain, the manipulative skill areas, are still being developed. One author<sup>3</sup> has identified possible levels in the psychomotor domain as: perception, set, guided response, mechanism, and complex overt response. Explanations of these suggested levels are found on page 11. The hierarchy in the psychomotor domain may be illustrated as follows: The teacher may demonstrate threading a sewing machine while students perceive what she does. Next the student prepares himself physically, mentally and emotionally to respond. The student then imitates the teacher or follows directions. Practice is required until he can thread the machine with little conscious effort. Finally, the student develops such a high degree of skill that he threads the machine automatically and with confidence.

Objectives in all three categories (cognitive, affective and psychomotor) should be included when planning units in homemaking education. Cognitive and affective domains can easily be included in all areas of homemaking. The psychomotor domain is applicable primarily in teaching skills, particularly in the areas of foods and nutrition and clothing and textiles. Behavioral objectives aid in planning learning experiences as well as in planning evaluation items to measure the degree to which students have achieved these objectives.

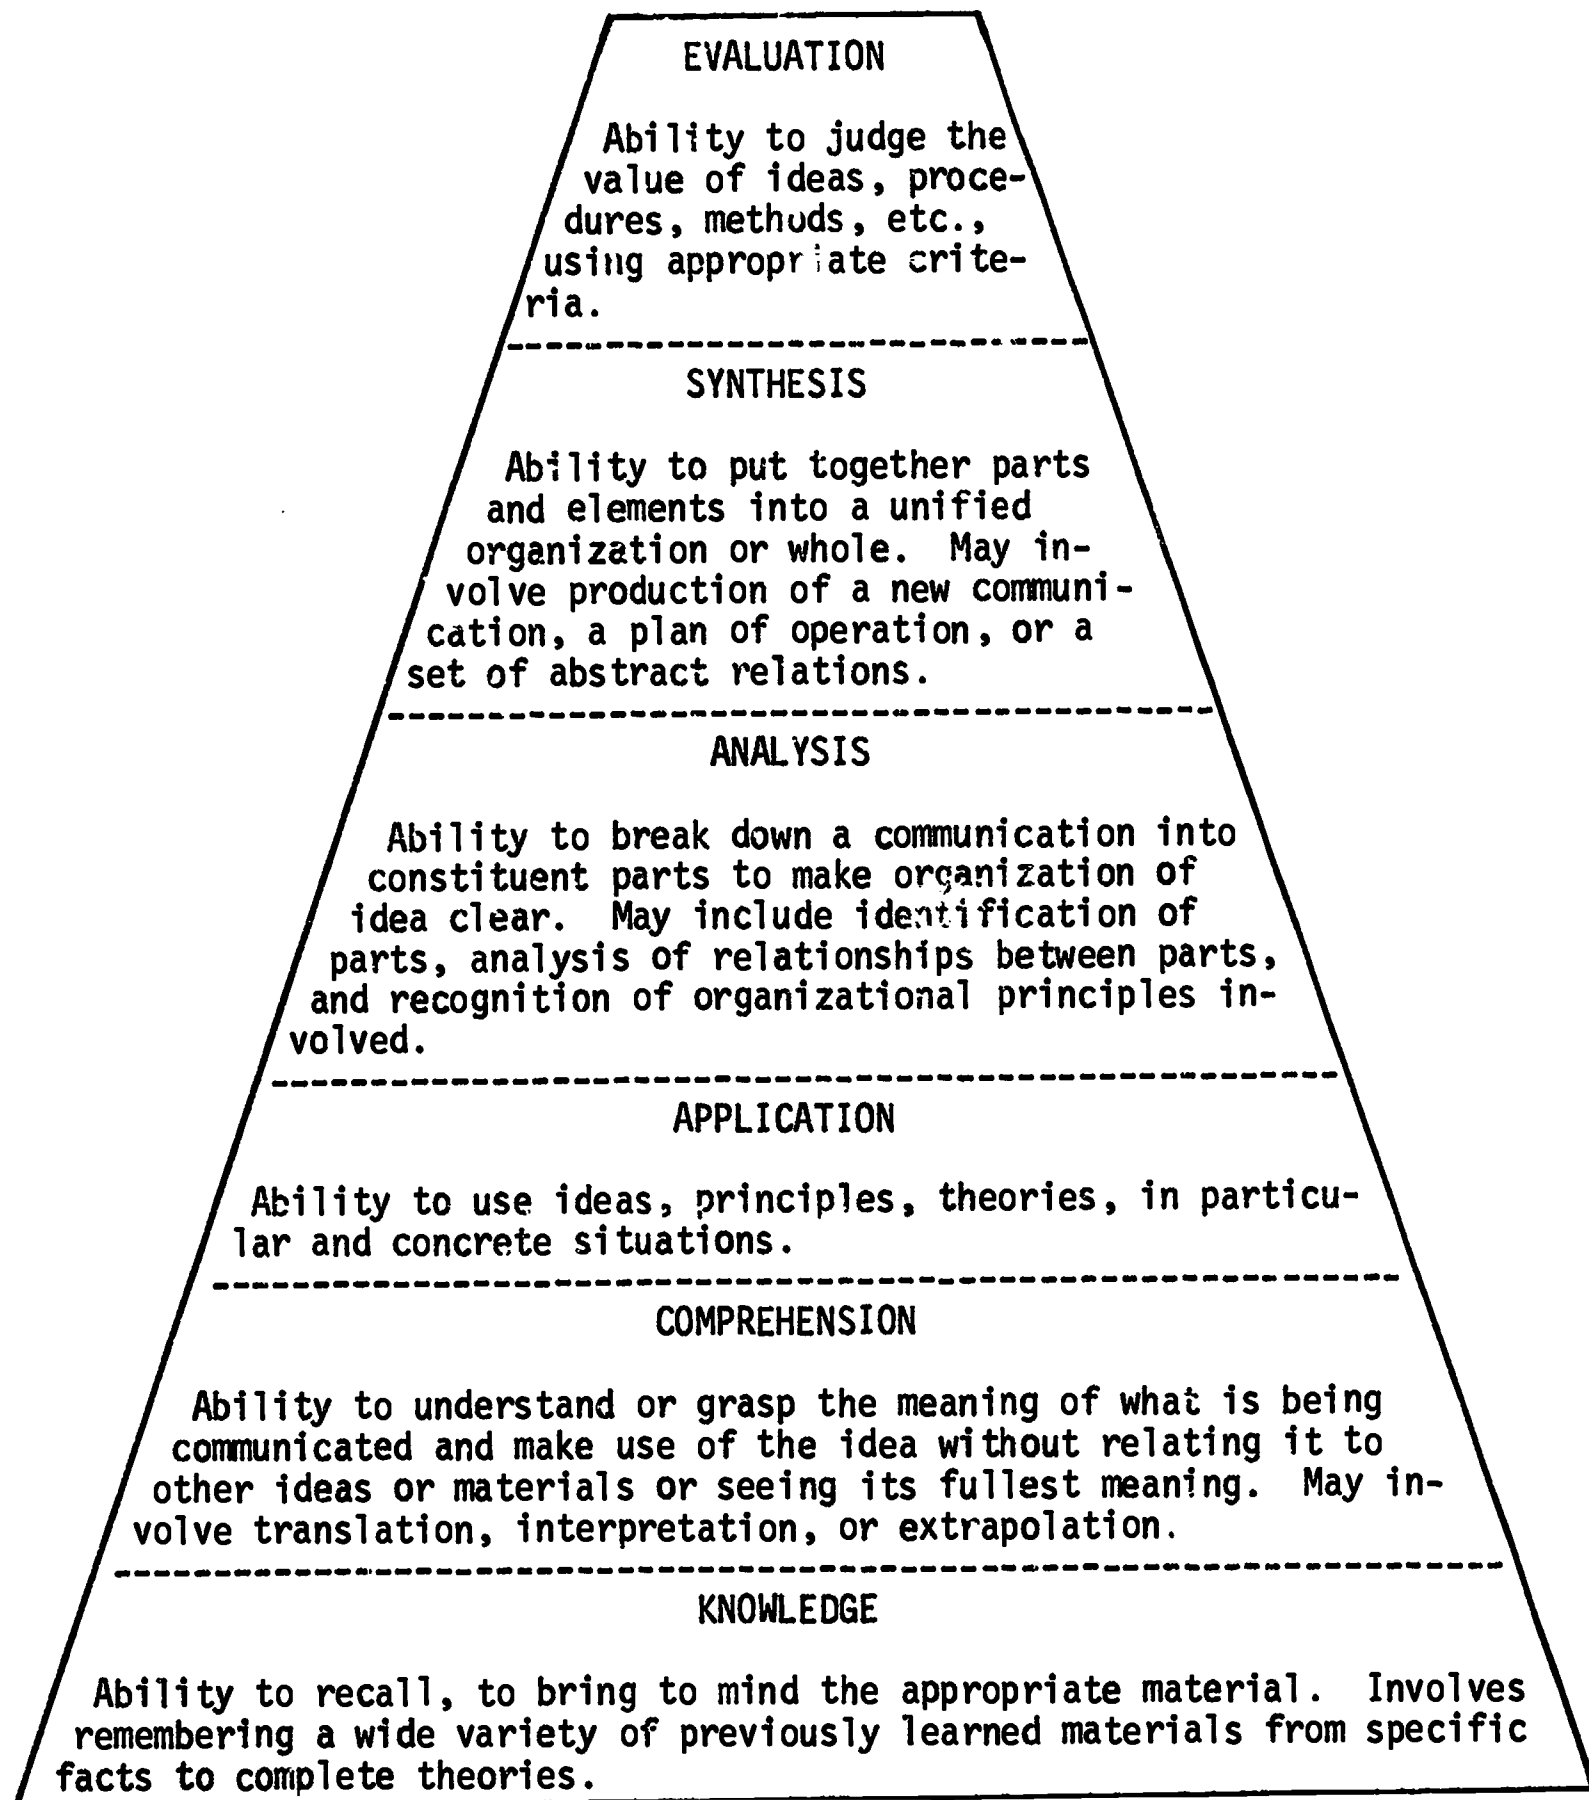

The inclusion of objectives at the higher levels of learning as well as at lower levels is another important consideration in curriculum planning. Unfortunately, the memory aspects of learning often dominate the curriculum. Research has shown that a large portion of memorized material is forgotten rapidly and that students are often unable to apply memorized material when needed. For example, a student may know many facts about nutrition without being able to make nutritious food choices for himself in the school cafeteria. As a result of spending excessive time at the memory level, many teachers tend to offer students little opportunity to develop their capacities at higher levels. To improve the intellectual climate of her classroom, the teacher must consciously include objectives at the higher levels of learning in each domain and provide the necessary learning experiences to enable the students to reach the objectives.

DEFINITIONS OF TERMS

Behavioral objective - the expected measurable behavior that should result from successful completion of designated learning experiences.

Community activity - learning activities related to classroom experiences which are carried out in the community for the purposes of personal development, community service, and improvement of community life.

Concept - an abstraction representing the world of objects and events and a means of organizing them into categories.

Evaluation experiences - activities which help determine the progress made toward the achievement of specific behavioral objectives.

FHA - Future Homemakers of America organization.

Generalization - a complete thought which expresses an underlying truth, has an element of universality, and usually indicates relationships. Generalizations help give meaning to concepts.

Home experiences - learning activities related to classroom experiences which are planned, carried out, and evaluated by pupils in their homes, under the guidance of the teacher and parents, for the purposes of personal development and improvement of home life.

Home practice - learning activities which give learners opportunities to practice at home skills learned in the classroom.

Learning experiences - purposeful activities that have meaning for students at their developmental level and result in some degree of growth toward behavioral objectives.

Resources - teaching materials, books, pamphlets, journals, visual aids, and other instructional materials needed to carry out the suggested learning experiences and to reach behavioral objectives.

Scope - the extent or range of concepts.

Sequence - the order of progression of concepts.

Taxonomy of educational objectives - a system for classifying behavioral objectives into hierarchies or levels of learning in three domains (cognitive, affective, and psychomotor).

HOMEMAKING I

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Analyze the factors that influence human development (An)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Basic Needs
Certain physical and psychological needs are common to everyone.	Identify basic physical and psychological needs of individuals (K)	List in columns on the board the basic physical needs of humans such as: food, clothing, shelter, and air. Also list the basic psychological needs of humans such as: affection, new experiences, success and companionship.
Everyone, at times, experiences conflicts in basic needs.	Give examples showing the interaction and conflict between physical and psychological needs (C)	Collect advertisements from magazines. Indicate how they appeal to the basic psychological and physical needs. List needs appealed to by advertisers.
Basic needs may be arranged in a hierarchical order; lower levels must be met before one can reach a higher level.	Explain Maslow's hierarchy of needs (C)	Discuss the relationships of physical and psychological needs in various case situations such as, a young man who is miserable wearing a coat and tie to a dance on a warm evening. Give other examples showing the interaction and conflict between physical and psychological needs.
		Listen to a report on Maslow's hierarchy of needs: physiological needs, safety needs, love needs, esteem needs, and self-actualization.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
		Give examples of how parents may fulfill the above needs. What happens if some of these needs are not met? How can children help fulfill parents' needs? Develop a visual aid illustrating the levels in Maslow's hierarchy of needs. Share with class. Discuss situations in which persons never progress through all five levels of the hierarchy. For example: a miser, who uses money for security and to keep himself safe from want, may never progress beyond level two.
Personality Development
Individual personalities are unique due to the influence of inherent potential and environmental experience which are different for each person.	Recognize the meaning of personality (K)	Define personality. Discuss the following statements about personality: "All people have a personality. There is no positive or negative personality type. An unacceptable personality is one that makes the individual unhappy, keeps him from functioning in his society or causes problems for others."
	Identify factors which influence personality development (K)	Work in groups to list personality traits that you admire in another person. Why do you think you admire them? Are they like your traits? complementary to your

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
One's personality may be improved through conscious effort.	Give examples of ways to improve personality traits (C)	traits? the traits of your favorite people? Report to class and compile a class list. Share your list with the school newspaper.
		Coordinating Experience: List traits you feel express your personality. Which ones do you like best? least? Make suggestions for improving the traits you like least about yourself.
		Write a paragraph on personality traits you admire.
	Explain the relationship between heredity and environment (C)	Discuss the following questions: What is environment? What is heredity? How do they relate to each other? Give examples.
		Point out ways heredity and environment may influence the individual's personality development.
		Coordinating Experience: Write a paper discussing the following questions: How did your heredity influence your personality? Consider appearance, sex, intelligence, physique, skin, eyes, and hair characteristics, etc. How did environment influence your personality? Consider type of family constellation, the occupations of family members, the talents

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Personality is one reflection of one's maturity.	Relate maturity to personality development (Ap)	of family members, the habits and hobbies of family members, your neighborhood, the people in your church, school, and community, etc. View a hexagon with each side labeled with one of the following aspects of maturity: mental, social, physical, chronological, emotional, psychological or philosophical. Discuss ways each of the six aspects of maturity is reflected in an individual's personality. Could some sides be less developed than others? Why? What would cause these differences? Could they be altered? How? Is it possible for the hexagon to become lopsided from lack of development in one of the areas? How is this imbalance reflected in personality development? What corrections must be made to develop a more balanced personality? What is a balanced personality? Is this ideal too difficult to achieve? Discuss: Do teenagers try to change their personalities in order to be what others expect them to be? Why? Why not? When would change be positive? When would such change be negative?

Popularity
Popularity indicates being approved of by or pleasing to others.	Define popularity (K)	Brainstorm to formulate a definition of popularity. Compare class definition to definitions from various references.
	Identify characteristics of a popular person (K)	List characteristics of a popular person in your school or community. Would this person always be popular in another school or social group? Why or why not?
	Give examples of characteristics of a popular person (C)	Poll students in your school to answer the following questions: What influences your opinion of others? popularity? social status? talents? hobbies and interests? economic position? character?  Discuss whether or not the needs of the group determine who becomes the popular person in the group. For example, the church youth group needs a song leader. A new boy in the community has experience in song leading. May this improve his popularity? Would he have to have a good personality to be popular? Give other examples.
"Pecking order" refers to the position one holds in a group in relation to every other member of the group.	Explain "pecking order" (C)	Study references on Duvall's concept of "pecking order." Discuss your observations about its function in your own life.

A number of factors influence the cost of popularity to a given individual.	Explain how an individual becomes popular (C)	Discuss questions such as the following: Do clothes and possessions determine who is popular? Why or why not? What causes a person to become less popular? Do some people improve their character by making decisions which decrease their popularity? How? Read books and stories such as, Profiles in Courage by J.F. Kennedy, to find examples of this.
Values, Goals, and Standards
Values, goals, and standards give direction and purpose to one's life.	Define values, goals, and standards (K)	Obtain definitions of values, goals, and standards from the dictionary and other sources. Place definitions of each in columns on the board. Why are we interested in studying these three terms?
	Give examples of values, goals, and standards (C)	Give an example in the "Value" column, of something which the majority of the class values such as, increased education. In the "Goals" column, write a goal which will reflect that value. For example, pass the English test on Friday. Identify how different people have different standards for each value and goal. Suggest examples in the "Standards" column such as, pass test with a C grade, pass test with an A grade, or pass test with a D grade.

		Discuss the following statement: "What we value, we must first choose, then cherish, then act on." Coordinating Experience: State five values that you would choose for your life. Keep track of your activities for a week. What did you do in each instance to indicate that you actually did cherish and act upon the values you chose.
Values, goals, and standards are influenced by various factors.	Predict factors which influence values, goals, and standards (Ap)	Work in buzz groups to list factors (such as: parents, peers, abilities, attitudes, needs, and personality characteristics) which influence values, goals, and standards. Report to class. Listen to records, read stories, or recall movies dramatizing values, goals, and standards. Identify the values, goals, and standards expressed.
	Determine personal values, goals, and standards (An)	Write a paper on "Who Am I?" Include the following things about yourself: "How do I spend my time?" How do I spend my money?" "Things I always get done are the things I value such as..."

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Explain the role of self-assurance in developing friendships (C)	Observe and discuss the following diagram related to self-assurance:
Discuss these questions concerning the diagram. How is one's self-assurance a contributing factor to making friends? What action can a person take to increase his self-assurance? Is it possible to lose one's self-assurance? Give examples. How can friendships increase one's self-assurance? How can you strengthen a friend's self assurance?	List friendship problems on chalkboard and discuss causes and solutions.	Write a paper beginning "I could be of help to the following persons if..." Explain ways you may be friendly to a person who is shy, aggressive, over- or under-weight, physically handicapped, mentally handicapped, a slow or rapid maturer, from a different cultural background, or a new student.
Recognition of one's responsibility to other persons is a sign of maturity.	Extend personal responsibility in interpersonal relationships (C)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding one's values, goals, and standards contributes to appreciation of self.	Relate values, goals, and standards to appreciation of self (Ap)	Identify values, goals, and standards you feel are representative of you in each situation. List them in order of priority. Ask a friend to make a list of values she thinks you possess. Compare this list to your personal list. Evaluate your original list of values, goals, and standards.
		Discuss the following questions: What are some day-to-day actions which may result from holding certain values and goals? How may values and goals influence one's future? What will be the result if one holds values that are the same as those of his friends? How will understanding other people's values help one in his personal relationships? How do values determine goals and standards? How do goals determine values? How do standards determine the value that one places on any one particular goal?

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Others

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Develop guidelines for effective human relationships (S)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Family  The ability to establish satisfying human relationships contributes to successful family living.	Identify characteristics of a family (K)	Write personal definitions of the family, its role, function, and constellation. Share with class. Compare definitions to textbook definitions. Compile class definitions for the family, its role, function, and constellation. What is a family?
	Recognize responsibilities of parents and children to one another (K)	Work in groups to list the responsibilities that parents have toward their children. List responsibilities that children have toward their parents. Where do they overlap? Why does this happen? What specific needs do these overlapping responsibilities indicate?
		Coordinating Experience: Write a paper to complete the following sentences: "What I like about my family is _____" and "Things I would change about myself as a family member are my _____".
	Summarize factors which influence effective family relationships (C)	Compile a class list of the "Ten Commandments for Good Family Relationships." Share with school newspaper or use to develop a bulletin board.

Conflicts are a normal part of living in a family.	Predict solutions to parent-child conflicts (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA or community activity, write a skit or play illustrating the "Ten Commandments for Good Family Relationships" compiled by class. Write anonymous descriptions of parent-child conflicts. As teacher reads the descriptions, play "Dear Abby" and suggest solutions for each description of conflict. Share your answers with class. Discuss. Role play to illustrate and solve some of the above problems. Draw conclusions about what teen-agers can do to help resolve family conflict. List problems that one may have with younger brothers and sisters; with older brothers and sisters. Study references to identify factors which cause brother and sister conflicts. Report to class the suggestions that authorities make for solving such conflicts.
	Outline problems in sibling relations (K)
	Give examples of solutions to sibling conflicts (C)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Clarification of family roles promotes successful relationships as a family member.	Analyze personal role in sibling relationships (An)	Respond to following questions for self-evaluation: Have you realized that when a younger brother or sister takes something of yours he (she) may want it because he admires you? Have you discussed with your parents the role that you play in the discipline of younger brothers and sisters? (Remember, discipline is to educate!) Are you guilty of treating your older brothers or sisters the way you resent being treated by younger ones? Are you aware of how you are an example for younger brothers and sisters? Can you recall times that a younger brother or sister has imitated you? Were you proud of what they copied?
Explain traditional and contemporary family roles (C)	Plan for improvement of sibling relationships (S)	Coordinating Experience: List some of your most frequent problems in relating to brothers and sisters. Make plans for solving these problems. Report results.
Define "role" as related to the family. Identify the traditional roles of family members. Compare these to contemporary, changing roles of husband, wife, and children in the family. Use a tape recorder to record opinions on roles of various family members. Record persons of all ages to see how opinions compare.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Acceptance of personal and family responsibilities contributes to effective family relationships.	State personal role in family responsibilities (K)	React to the statement: "Your privileges are in direct relationship to the responsibilities you take." List the responsibilities you have which are connected with the family. List the privileges which your family allows you.
	Relate assumption of responsibilities in the family to gaining personal privileges (Ap)	Identify privileges you have this year that you did not have last year. Why? How do you think these privileges will increase as you assume more responsibilities?
	Explain personal responsibility in handling money (C)	Discuss the following questions: How have you contributed to your family's finances? by assuming responsibilities? by taking care of supplies and property? by bringing in money through work? By using your talents to create clothing, food, maintain furniture, etc.? In what ways have you shown responsibility in handling money? What effect did it have on you and/or your family? Has your family's confidence in your ability to handle money increased? How? Why? What did you do to increase their confidence in you?
		Give examples of an irresponsible way to handle money. What problems may be incurred with family members because of misuse of money?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Demonstrate the ability to formulate spending and savings plan (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: Make a spending plan for one week. Keep a record of your expenditures for one week. How does your actual spending compare to your plans for spending? Relate spending habits to your personal values and to basic needs.
Methods of sharing family income vary from family to family and with age and maturity of children.	Analyze methods of sharing family income with children (An)	Poll families with children of various ages to learn methods of sharing family income with children such as: allowance method, pay for household duties, "dole," or earning money outside the home. Discuss the advantages and disadvantages of each method. Does the teen-ager's source of income influence personal spending habits? How is age related to method used?
Utilization of personal, family, and community recreational facilities may contribute to family harmony.	Identify types of family recreation (K)	Discuss whether or not a child should have a plan for spending and saving his money. Give suggestions from personal experience or research for formulating such a plan.  List recreational activities that your family enjoys together.

Recreational needs vary throughout the family life cycle.	Identify recreational needs throughout the family life cycle (K)	Conduct a survey among peers to determine what types of family recreation, if any, their families enjoy together. Compile results and compare with your list of recreational activities.
	Explain personal contribution to family recreation (C)	Interview families at different stages of the family life cycle to learn the types of recreation they enjoy.  Brainstorm to list ways a teen-ager may contribute to improved family recreation. Is family recreation important? Why or why not? List ways family recreation contributes to family solidarity.
	Demonstrate ways to involve families in recreational activities (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: Plan and carry out recreational activities involving your entire family for a week or longer.
	Analyze the influence of family values, goals, and standards on family recreation (An)	Discuss the effect values, goals, and standards have on the type of recreation and amount of money spent for family recreation.  Debate: "Spending money for a big vacation vs. several small outings." Relate decisions to values, goals, and standards.

Friends
Understanding interpersonal behavior improves one's abilities to relate effectively to others.	Name qualities of a good friend (K)	Complete the following statements: "A good friend is someone who ____." "To be a friend I should ____."
		Compile a class list of "The Ten Most Wanted Qualities of a Friend."
		Construct a bulletin board, illustrating "The Ten Most Wanted Qualities of a Friend" listed by the class.
		Coordinating Experience: For community activity, plan a program for younger students on "How to Be a Good Friend."
Explain the importance of friends in one's life (C)		Discuss quotations such as the following: "Life has no blessing like a friend." (Euripides) "False friendship like the ivy, decays and ruins the walls it embraces; but true friendship gives new life and animation to the object it supports." (Burton)
Predict traits that hinder friendships (Ap)		Make a poster listing and/or illustrating traits that hinder friendships.
		Discuss the slogan: "To have a friend, be a friend." Make suggestions for ways to improve one's ability to be a friend.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Predict the influence of friends on personal behavior (Ap)	Discuss ways friendships affect one's behavior. Relate the six aspects of maturity (physical, philosophical, chronological, mental, emotional, social) to one's choice of friends. What price may one have to pay for popularity or for maintaining a friendship? Why?
	Analyze the importance of maintaining effective friendships (An)	Coordinating Experience: Analyze a broken friendship you have experienced. Why was the friendship broken? What did you learn from this experience that is or will be beneficial in other friendships? How do friends meet your needs? Could these needs be temporary, thus affecting the friendship?
Entertainment may be used as a means for developing more meaningful relationships with others.	Identify ways one can entertain friends at home (K)	Discuss various types of parties or other means that teen-agers may use to entertain friends at home.  Coordinating Experience: For FHA, plan a party or other form of entertainment.
	List community recreational facilities available to youth (K)	Explore community recreational resources for young people. Compile a list of those available in your community or nearby.

		Discuss reasons young people take advantage of some resources and not of others.
	Estimate ways recreational facilities could be improved (C)	Compile a list of suggested improvements for recreational facilities. Consider various ways these facilities could be provided.
Getting Along with Others
The ability to communicate effectively contributes to satisfying interpersonal relationships.	Illustrate verbal and non-verbal communication (C)	Give examples of verbal and non-verbal communications. Why is communication important in developing interpersonal relationships?
	Estimate the role of communication in interpersonal relationships (C)	Recall a misunderstanding that you have had with a friend. Was the misunderstanding due to lack of communication? What were the consequences? How could similar misunderstandings be prevented in the future?
		Recall a time when you failed to listen to what was being said. What were the results of not listening? Identify reasons why you did not listen.
	Demonstrate skills in effective communications (Ap)	Read an article in a newspaper or magazine explaining skills in effective communication. Give a one minute summary to the class. Have class members repeat what you have

		said. Evaluate their summary and compare to your idea of what you thought you said. Give directions in one minute on how to get to your home. Have class evaluate the clarity of your directions. Describe verbally to some one who has "never" seen a coat before, how to put on a coat. Stand with your back to the group. Let classmates ask questions and evaluate.
	Define empathy (K)	Discuss the meaning of empathy. How does your definition relate to the expression, "To walk in someone's shoes"?
The ability to empathize contributes to effective human relationships.	Explain empathetic actions (C)	Listen to case studies of teen-age problems. Which of the characters do you identify with? Why?
	Discover the role of empathy as an interpersonal technique for improving human relationships (Ap)	Role play situations which may involve empathy. Discuss ways having empathy will improve one's relationships with family, friends, and acquaintances. Play a simulation game on empathy to gain an insight into oneself.

Understanding rights and privileges of persons involved contribute to effective interpersonal relationships.	Explain the rights and privileges of others pertaining to interpersonal relationship (C)	Discuss the saying: "My rights end at the end of my fist and the beginning of the other person's nose." Give examples of recent school events in which you felt there was an infringement on the rights of an individual or group. How could the situation have been prevented? Coordinating Experience: Give personal examples of times you have infringed on the rights of others. What were the results? How did these experiences give you a better understanding of interpersonal relationships? Review government documents which outline rights and privileges of citizens such as, Bill of Rights and Constitutional Amendments. Where do we obtain the foundation for our rights and privileges in America?

Dates

Various types of dating contribute to the development of social and emotional maturity.

Identify types of dating (K)

List the types of dating situations. Identify characteristics of each of the following: group dating, double dating, blind dating, casual dating, steady dating

The legal regulations affecting the family reflect society's attitudes, mores, and expectations.	Identify laws which affect the individual and the family (K)	Study resources to identify laws such as: marriage, child custody, divorce, property, juvenile, traffic, and safety laws, which affect individuals and families.
	Explain the purpose of laws affecting individuals and families (C)	Discuss questions such as the following: What are the purposes of laws on divorce? on parents and minors? on adolescents and their parents? on child abuse? on parental custody? on adults contributing to the delinquency of a minor? What would be the effect on the community if any of these laws were abolished?

CONCEPT: Relating Family Living to Career and Job Opportunities

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Determine personal qualities contributing to employability (An)

Entry Level Job Opportunities for Teen-agers
Knowledge of employment opportunities may help formulate one's goals in the world of work.	Identify employment opportunities for teen-agers (K)	View a visual aid depicting a variety of entry level job opportunities for teen-agers which are related to family living. Consider such jobs as baby-sitter, hospital aide, playground supervisor, camp counselor, receptionist, companion, and recreational leader.
	Explain employment opportunities for teen-agers (C)	Work in groups to explain each entry level job opportunity for teen-agers. Identify the average pay, responsibilities, and benefits of each job. Locate possible businesses or organizations in your community that may need such employees.
		Prepare a bulletin board titled "Job Tips" including information concerning job descriptions, applications, addresses, and special qualifications. Materials can be obtained from school counselors, churches, service clubs, Chamber of Commerce, other students, Texas Employment Commission, etc.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Qualities Contributing to Employability
Studies in the area of family living may help individuals develop qualities that contribute to successful employment.	List desirable personality traits (K)	Review resources on personality traits. List personality traits which would be desirable and those which would be undesirable for a worker to possess.
	Explain the importance of a pleasing personality (C)	Discuss the following questions: What is a pleasing personality? How may a pleasing personality contribute to an individual's employability?
	Show the effect of personality on job success (Ap)	Role play workers with desirable and undesirable personality traits to illustrate the effect one's personality has on job success.
Self-understanding may contribute to one's employability.	Describe self-understanding (K)	Brainstorm for definitions of self-understanding. Compile a class definition. Compare the definitions of authorities.
	Explain the importance of self-understanding to employment (C)	Discuss the following questions: Why would an employer want an employee to understand himself? How does understanding yourself help you to get along with others? Why is it important to get along with others in your work?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Getting along with others is important in many occupations, particularly those related to family living.	Identify occupations in which getting along with others is important (K)  Explain how interest in people affects employability (C)	Describe any occupation in which getting along with others is important. Make a class list.  Summarize how an interest in people would benefit an employee in the occupations listed. Why is this character trait particularly important to employees in family living related occupations?
Maturity is essential for job success.	Analyze effect of social maturity on employability (An)	Read a case study of a socially mature and a socially immature person. Discuss the following questions: How did the socially immature person get along with others? the socially mature person? What effect did maturity have upon the ability of the people in the case study to get and keep jobs? How would maturity affect a teen-ager's ability to get and keep a job?
One's attitudes often affect job success.	List ways one's attitude affects his job success (K)	Read several sources to determine the effect of one's attitude on job success. Write five major ideas based on the readings that would help a person improve his work attitude.

	Explain the effect of attitude on job success (C)	Role play situations in which an employee demonstrates a poor attitude such as, being continually late, failing to call in when absent, or talking against the firm. Decide how the employer would handle each situation.
	Show ways positive attitudes contribute to job success (Ap)	Work in groups to predict ways a positive attitude may contribute to job success. How may you develop a positive attitude toward your job? on future jobs? How may a positive attitude help you to derive more satisfaction from your job?
Critical self-analysis may contribute to a realistic understanding of one's potential in the world of work.	Identify occupational potential (An)	Complete a self inventory to help you identify your interest, abilities, personal qualities, and skills as objectively as possible. Ask friends, parents, employer, co-workers, counselors, and teachers to evaluate your inventory to aid you in obtaining a realistic composite of your potential.
	Analyze personal characteristics (An)	Coordinating Experience: Read about jobs that are of interest to you. Compare with your self inventory. List entry level jobs which you feel may be suitable for you. Do you have the personal characteristics needed? How could you develop the needed characteristics?

HOMEMAKING II

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Analyze oneself in terms of personal development (An)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Character Development  Character, a part of one's personality, refers to one's habitual patterns of behavior related to his values and the demands of society.	Recognize what is meant by character (K)  Identify the influences on character development (C)	Define character. Discuss the statement, "Character is what you are--not what you appear to be." List character traits.  Discuss questions such as the following: What influences one's character development? friends? peers? parents? religious training? experiences? teachers? clergy? How has each influenced your development?
Character develops in stages similar to other forms of development.	Relate character to behavior (Ap)  Point out ways stages of character development influence behavior (An)	Role play situations in which one's character is tested. How does character influence one's behavior? What is the relationship between character and values?  Divide into groups to research information on the stages of development presented by each of the following authorities: Freud, Erick Erikson, and Havighurst and Peck. Select a reporter to present findings to class. Compare and discuss the various theories.

Maturity
A mature person copes with his environment, has a realistic picture of himself and the world, and can control his emotions.	Cite definitions of maturity (K)	Define maturity in your own words. Consult dictionary for definition of maturity. How does this definition compare to yours?
There is more than one type of maturity.	Recognize different types maturity (K)	Identify the types of maturity such as: chronological, physical, intellectual, emotional, social, and philosophical.
		List characteristics of maturity for each of the types of maturity. Can an individual be mature in one way and not in another?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Individuals mature at different rates.	Explain individual rates of maturity (C)	Give examples of ways that each individual matures at his own rate within each type of maturity. List both mature and immature acts or attitudes you have noticed in others or in yourself recently.
		Describe a person whom you consider mature. List characteristics which you feel exemplify his maturity. Do you know any ways in which he is still immature? How?
	Analyze personal maturity (An)	Research information which helps to establish criteria for judging personal maturity. Compile a maturity check sheet using the research information. Fill out the check sheet and compare with classmates. Determine personal maturity.
		View biographical films which show character development.
		Write a paper showing that you are maturing on a continuum. Begin your paper with the following statement: "I have grown from _____ to _____."
One is neither mature nor immature at all times; the degree of maturity may vary in different situations.	Explain the function of defense mechanisms (C)	View cartoons which exemplify various defense mechanisms. Define and explain the function of these mechanisms.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
A given response may be mature or immature depending on the situation.	Illustrate reasons for the use of defense mechanisms (C)	Give personal examples or observations which illustrate each type of defense mechanisms.
	Distinguish between mature and immature responses to situations (An)	Discuss ways in which we all need and use defense mechanisms daily to maintain our mental health and well-being.
		Construct a bulletin board of cartoons which illustrate the defense mechanisms.
		Read case situations and identify the defense mechanisms in evidence.
		Role play situations which show the use of defense mechanisms. Identify whether the use of each defense mechanism represented a mature or immature response.
Make plans for increasing personal maturity (Ap)		Contribute to a class collection of news clippings, articles, or columns, which show mature and immature responses to various situations. Make a list of personal assets and limitations as related to responses listed above.
		Coordinating Experience: Write a paragraph on plans for increasing personal maturity.

CONCEPT: Self in Groups

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Demonstrate competence in group situations (Ap)

	Estimate factors which influence perception (C)	View abstract drawings or pictures. Write your interpretation of the pictures. Share and compare interpretations with classmates. What influenced your interpretation? association? past experiences?
		Compare your responses to the definition of perception.
	Demonstrate ways individuals' perceptions differ (Ap)	Prepare skits to show how it is possible for two or more people to perceive the same situation in entirely different ways.
		Summarize ways perception influences one's relationships with others.

CONCEPT: Self in the Future

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Develop guidelines for building successful dating relationships (S)

Love Relationships
Love develops in stages similar to other forms of development; when stages are skipped, the process is incomplete.	Define love (K)	Collect famous quotes defining love. Construct bulletin board using these definitions.
	Describe the stages of love (C)	Construct a bulletin board of pictures and words from magazines illustrating personal concepts of love.
		Review the stages of love.
		Study the pictures on the bulletin board to determine the stages of love represented by each.
		Discuss the following cliches: "True love is not blind." "There is no such thing as love at first sight." "How do you know you're in love?"
	Associate development of love relationships with success of marriage (An)	View filmstrips on love, infatuation, and/or marriage. Draw conclusions relating to development of love relationships. How is love related to sex appeal? to respect? to responsibility? to trust?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding factors influencing dating behavior contributes to acceptance of personal responsibility.	Distinguish differences between males and females (C)	View film or filmstrip on physical and/or psychological characteristics of men and women. How do they differ? How are they similar?
	Analyze the relationship of maturity and dating decisions (An)	View filmstrip on differences in masculine and feminine roles in dating. Summarize the differences between male and female roles in today's society. Discuss questions such as: Why is it helpful to understand the physical and psychological differences of men and women? What influence do your values have on dating standards? How do your dating decisions affect your family? Are you willing to live with the consequences of your decisions?
	Explain influence of behavioral codes and dating mores on dating behavior (C)	Give oral report on a book relating to teen-age behavioral codes.
	Explain the importance of moral development (J)	Write a paper titled "Reasons for developing a strong moral foundation before one begins to date."
	Identify pressures of contemporary youth (K)	Listen to a panel of young adults or college students identify the meaning of the "double standard." Evaluate its effect upon the actions and expectations of men and women.

		Discuss pressures on today's youth. Do you feel that there are unusual pressures on youth today? If so, how does it affect their dating standards? Do you feel that most young people have higher moral standards than they are given credit for? Support your answers.
		Listen to a panel of teen-age boys and girls present their ideas and attitudes toward dating.
	Explain consequences of loss of emotional control (C)	View film on consequences of loss of emotional control in dating situations. Discuss.
Building Successful Dating Relationships
Understanding the types, functions, and etiquette of dating contributes to successful dating relationships.	Summarize types, functions and etiquette of dating (C)	Review types and functions of dating. Define etiquette. Review dating etiquette.
Understanding influences on dating contributes to building successful dating relationships.	Describe influence of parental attitudes on dating behavior (C)	Listen to panel of parents (two fathers, two mothers, unrelated if possible) discuss attitudes about teen-age dating. Participate in an open question and answer session. What are some factors which influence parents' attitudes toward dating?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding oneself contributes to building successful dating relationships.	Explain the role of physical attractiveness in establishing successful dating relationships (C)	List ways your parents, peers, values, philosophy of life, siblings, etc., have influenced your values and standards for dating.
Develop a personal improvement plan (S)	Analyze yourself in relation to dating (An)	Compile a list of physical and psychological characteristics which you admire in a person you date.
Identify principles of attraction (K)	Develop a personal improvement plan (S)	Conduct a survey among boys and girls to determine what physical and psychological characteristics they admire in persons they date. Compile results of survey and compare to your own list.
Understanding oneself contributes to building successful dating relationships.	Identify principles of attraction (K)	Coordinating Experience: Write a paper discussing your reasons for dating, your dating possibilities, your goals, your standards, your values, and yourself as a dating partner.
Understanding oneself contributes to building successful dating relationships.	Identify principles of attraction (K)	Develop a plan for personal improvement.
Understanding oneself contributes to building successful dating relationships.	Identify principles of attraction (K)	Research and give an oral presentation on the principles of attraction as related to dating. Do opposites attract? Why? Why not? Why do persons who have things in common enjoy one another's company?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Give examples of activities which help determine a couple's compatibility (C)	List interests a couple could share which might contribute to compatibility such as, religion, education, activities, goals, family background. Why might these things in common contribute to compatibility?
		List activities which would be unlikely to contribute to the development of a relationship.

CONCEPT: Relating Family Living to Career and Job Opportunities

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Point out skills and competencies needed for careers and job opportunities in the areas of family living (An)

Semiprofessional or Skilled Job Opportunities
Knowledge of semiprofessional or skilled job opportunities in family living may aid one in career planning.	Identify semiprofessional or skilled job opportunities related to family living (K)	View a bulletin board illustrating semi-professional or skilled job opportunities related to family living. Include such job opportunities as nuresmaid, nursery school assistant, toy salesman, research assistant, teacher's aide, child care aide, and home health aide.
	Explain preparation needed for employment in semi-professional and skilled occupations related to family living (C)	Make a list of questions class members have about semiprofessional and skilled family living occupations. Include the following: training needed, job requirements, assets and limitations of each job, etc.
		Tape an interview with resource persons who are employed in semiprofessional or skilled occupations related to family living. Discuss the questions developed in class. Summarize the main points. What were the similarities in training among the jobs listed?

Skills and Competencies Needed
Understanding skills and competencies needed for employment contributes to realistic career choices.	Identify skills and competencies required for careers in family living (K)	Explore references to develop an explanation of the skills and competencies needed for a career in a family living occupation. Include such skills and competencies as, the ability to relate effectively to others, ability to accept responsibility, and ethical behavior on the job, etc.
	Estimate the need for various skills and competencies for employment (C)	Give examples of ways the ability to relate effectively to others, ability to accept responsibility, and ethical behavior are important in any occupation.
	Explain skills and competencies needed for employment in occupations related to family living (C)	View slides showing skills and competencies needed by persons employed in jobs and careers related to family living. In small groups, discuss the particular talents, skills, and competencies necessary for the different jobs shown in the slides.
Ability to relate effectively to others is important in many occupations.	Explain the importance of the ability to relate to others (C)	Discuss the role of ability to relate effectively to others in each of the family living occupations. Why is this important in any occupation?
Ethical behavior on the job contributes to job success.	Show the effects of unethical behavior (Ap)	Work in groups to present a skit showing unethical behavior in each family living occupation and the results of such behavior.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
To succeed in the world of work an employee must be willing to accept responsibility.	Analyze the importance of accepting responsibilities (An)	Is ethical behavior important in other occupations? Why? How important is ethical behavior in the occupation you presently hold? Explain.
Good human relationships are important for job success.	Identify the importance of good human relationships as an employee (K)	Work in groups to make a chart of the employees responsibilities in each of the family living occupations listed. What are the effects of not meeting these responsibilities? Share with class.
Understanding what an employer expects of an employee contributes to job success.	Explain the effect of human relationships on job success (C)	Read several resources to identify the importance of good human relationships on the job.
		Listen to an employer or public relations representative discuss: ways a new employee can make a good first impression, common human relations errors a new worker often makes; ways to establish business relationships, characteristics that enhance job relationships with co-workers, ways to communicate among employees within a firm, and ways an employee is evaluated or rated in terms of job success.
		Discuss the following questions: How can employees promote better communication within a firm? Do these same principles

		apply to the supervisor and employer as well as the employees? Why or why not? What are the most common mistakes made by employers and employees in trying to develop working relationships? How important is an effective program of public relations to most firms? How important are good public relations to most employees?
Show ways to make a good impression on the job (Ap)		Coordinating Experience: Prepare guides for making a good impression on the job by interviewing several employees and employers. Demonstrate to class.
		Coordinating Experience: For FHA, invite a panel of employers to discuss: "What I look for In An Employee."

HOMEMAKING III

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Determine ways appreciation of self contributes to successful human relationships (An)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Self Theory
One's self-concept influences his understanding and acceptance of others.	Identify the three components of the self theory (K)	View three mirrors showing faces representing the three components of self: personal self, social self, and ideal self. Define each of the three selves.
	Explain the role of self-concept in human relationships (C)	Discuss questions such as the following: What influences a person's concept of his personal self? What influences other persons' concepts of an individual? What factors contribute to the integration of the three components of self? How does a positive view of self affect one's behavior? How does a negative view of self affect one's behavior? How does a positive or negative view of oneself affect how other persons behave toward one? What type of self-concept causes a person to have concern for others instead of himself?
Discover components of the self theory (Ap)		Read a short story. Select one character and act out your interpretation of his three selves. Are they compatible?

	Analyze one's self- concept (An)	Coordinating Experience: View yourself in a mirror. Write down physical and personality characteristics which describe your view of yourself. Write down how you think others view you. Is it possible that you are not giving yourself credit for all your assets? Ask a trusted friend or adult to relate how he or she views your personal assets and limitations. Compare your personal self with your social self. Make plans for improvement. Brainstorm to identify influences on self over which we have control. Identify influences on self over which we have no control. How may we effectively cope with those influences which we cannot change?
Developing a Personal Philosophy of Life	Define personal philosophy of life (K)	Write your personal response to a current social issue in a short paragraph. Share with classmates. Define philosophy. Define personal philosophy of life. Impact of Change
Social change often strains family unity.	Identify social and psychological changes in contemporary society (K)	List causes for the social and psychological stresses that families and individuals experience as a result of technological and ecological change. For example: noise, mobility, job opportunities for women, and pressures for decision-making.
Rapid technological advancement precipitates change in the family.	Identify technological changes which influence the home and community (K)	List recent technological changes. Compare them to technological changes since the mid 19th century. How do you account for the tremendous acceleration of change in the past twenty years?
	Explain the influence of technological change on the family (C)	Discuss the effects of the following technological advances on the family: industrialization, mobility, labor saving devices, mass media, and medical achievements.
		View a film on ways technological change affects the family. Discuss.
	Relate technological change to change in the family (Ap)	Consider ways technological change has affected your family. What determines the effect of change upon the individuals in the family? How does perception of change influence the family's ability to cope with change?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
The family and the environment are interdependent.	Analyze the influence of ecological change upon the family (An)	Divide into buzz groups and discuss the following questions: In what ways may ecological changes cause personal values to change? How can ecological problems cause changes in family life style and size? How may increased education help families to adapt to changes? Draw conclusions.
The family in contemporary society needs the ability to understand and assimilate change.	Point out the importance of the ability to adapt to change (An)	Brainstorm to identify ways the family can cope with current changes. Summarize findings.  Read case studies illustrating situations in which a family can or cannot cope with the stress of change.  Identify constructive ways to adapt to the change. Relate ability to cope with change to general ability to cope with ordinary family adjustment problems.

CONCEPT: Relating Family Living to Career and Job Opportunities*OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Point out interrelationship of roles in employment and home life (An)

Dual Roles
Family relationships are affected by roles of individual family members.	Identify dual roles of family members (K)	Divide chalkboard into five columns. Title the columns father, mother, teenagers, younger children, and other family members. Write the roles of your family members accept in the appropriate column Identify dual roles of various family members.
	Summarize factors influencing dual roles (C)	Explain factors that cause family members to accept dual roles.
	Show ways family roles may be identified (Ap)	Work in groups to suggest ways new family units may identify roles. Be sure to include the establishment of priorities, abilities, skills, personal preference, resources, and time available. Present your group's suggestions to class.
Cooperation of family members contributes to successful execution of one's dual roles.	Analyze ways to achieve cooperation among family members (An)	Identify ways cooperation among family members may be achieved. Why is this important? Do some roles have more status than others? Can the status of roles be changed? How?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding dual roles may contribute to maintenance of satisfactory family relationships and to making necessary personal and social adjustments.	Analyze the effect of dual roles on family members (An)	Discuss the following questions. Does the acceptance of dual roles by family members affect the maintenance of satisfactory family relationships? How? Why? What individual and social adjustments must be made when accepting dual roles? What is the relationship of personal adjustment to the maintenance of satisfactory family relationships? How may an individual achieve self-actualization through acceptance of a dual role?
		Role play situations where the acceptance of dual roles by one or more family member creates conflict in family relationships. Discuss: What caused the conflict in family relationships? How could the conflict be solved? How could the conflict have been avoided? How does one family member influence the roles of other family members?
Interrelationship of Employment and Home Life
Understanding the interrelationship of employment and home life may contribute to effective decision-making. CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self--Basic Needs

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Relate satisfaction of basic needs to appreciation of self (Ap)

Definition of a Need
The gratification of a basic need promotes physical health, mental health, and personality development.	Identify basic needs (K)	List the qualities of a basic need.  Read resources on personality development to identify qualities of basic needs.
	Explain qualities of a basic need (C)	Rewrite the class list to include information obtained from readings.
Hierarchy of Needs
The basic needs of man are arranged in an order from lowest to highest in which the lower level needs must be met before the higher level needs.	Identify basic needs (K)	Make a class list of needs basic to man. Include: survival, food, clothing, shelter, safety, freedom, love, affection, belonging, companionship, esteem, success, recognition, new and varied experiences, cognitive clarity, physical and mental health, self-actualization.
	Illustrate basic needs (C)	Explain how each entry on the list fits the class definition of a basic need.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
When basic needs are not met, behavior patterns are directed to their fulfillment.	Give examples of basic needs (C)	Display pictures or cartoons illustrating each of the basic needs. Explain each need illustrated.
Identify behavior patterns when needs are not met (K)	Produce a hierarchical listing of basic needs (Ap)	Identify ways each of these basic needs is expressed by all men regardless of race, religion, culture, or part of the world in which they live.
Describe behavior patterns that are exhibited when basic needs are not met. For example, how does a person behave when he is hungry? cold? lonely?	Give examples of behavior patterns when needs are not met (C)	Arrange the class list of basic needs in an order from lowest to highest where lower level needs must be met before the higher level needs become important.
Discuss how each need must be met in succeeding order. For example: A person will sacrifice a safety need in order to fulfill a hunger need.	Collect examples of newspaper articles that illustrate situations in which there was conflict in need satisfaction. Which basic needs had not been met? What compensations did the person make to adjust	Discuss how each need must be met in succeeding order. For example: A person will sacrifice a safety need in order to fulfill a hunger need.

		to the conflict? What are some alternate ways of fulfilling the unmet needs?
	Illustrate ways needs are met (C)	Give examples of ways each need may be met in desirable and undesirable ways. Summarize ways gratification of needs contributes to appreciation of self.
Families contribute to meeting the basic needs of their members.	Identify family responsibilities in meeting the basic needs of its members (K)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA, invite a panel of adults and teenagers to discuss family responsibilities in meeting the basic needs of its members.
	Determine personal position in relation to hierarchy of needs (An)	Coordinating Experience: Write a paper explaining where you are on the class list of the hierarchy of needs. Why?

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self--Personality Development

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Point out ways understanding of personality development contributes to self-understanding (An)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Definition of Personality  Individual personalities are unique due to the influence of inherent potential and environmental experiences which are different for each person.	Cite the meaning of personality (K)  Explain personality development (C)	Define personality in one sentence. Share your definition with classmates.  Discuss how personality originates and develops.  Consider the question: "Does a new born baby have a personality?"  Describe the climate in two different parts of the country. What are the good and bad points of each? Does one part of the country have more climate than the other? Describe the personality of two individuals. What are the good and bad points of each? Does one person have more personality than the other? (Just as one part of the country does not have more climate than another, neither does one person have more personality than another.)  Paraphrase theories of personality development from readings such as, Freud, Sheldon, Jung, and Adler.

Preception of Influences	Prepare a definition of personality (Ap)	Prepare a class definition of personality from your readings.
An individual's personality is influenced by physical, psychological, hereditary, and environmental factors.	Identify influences on personality development (K)	Discuss how physical characteristics such as, physical handicaps and body build affect personality development.  Describe psychological factors which may influence personality development such as, affection, security, and adult models.
	Explain influences on personality development (C)	React to case studies illustrating inherited characteristics which may cause difficulties in personality development. Draw conclusions.  Explain the following statement: An individual's personality is influenced by his perception of his environment.
Each individual has both personality assets and limitations.	Recognize personality assets and limitations (K)	Brainstorm to identify personality assets and limitations.
	Give examples of personality assets and limitations (C)	Give examples of personality assets and/or limitations from your own experiences.
	Solve personality problems (Ap)	Read a case study concerning someone with personality limitations. Discuss ways to solve his problems.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Analyze personality assets and limitations (An)	Make a list of your personality assets and limitations. Make a plan for improvement.

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self--Character Development

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Propose ways to develop one's character (S)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Definition of Character  Character, a part of one's personality, refers to one's habitual patterns of behavior related to his values and the demands of society.	Define character (K)	Discuss the question: What is character? Locate a definition of character in the dictionary.
Stages  Character develops in stages similar to other forms of development.	Describe the various stages in character development (C)  Apply stages of character development to developmental stages of physical growth (Ap)  Classify various types of character traits (An)  Plan for the development of desirable character traits (S)	Present an oral report on the stages of character development. Research ideas of the following authorities: Freud, Eric Erikson, Havighurst, Peck, and Maslow.  Relate stages of character development to developmental stages of physical growth by use of case studies.  Read "My Most Unforgettable Character," Readers Digest to identify character traits.  Coordinating Experience: Make a list of character traits which you would like to develop. Write a paragraph on how you plan to develop these traits.

Understanding attributes of character contributes to character development.	Identify attributes of character (K)  Recognize conflict situations caused by improper character growth (K)	View transparencies illustrating the attributes of character.  Identify conflict situations where character growth does not proceed through each developmental stage such as: adult acting in an amoral manner, the expedient individual who cheats on tests, the irrationally conscientious individual who cannot make discriminating judgements, or the rational-altruistic individual who has firm moral principles.

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self--Self Theory

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Propose ways to integrate one's self-concept (S)

Components
One's self-concept influences his understanding and acceptance of others.	Identify the components of the self theory (K)	Study a bulletin board captioned "Know Yourself" which shows three masks illustrating the personal self, social self, and ideal self. Discuss the meaning of the components of self.
	Explain influences on self-concept (C)	Give examples of experiences which tend to enhance one's self-concept and examples which may cause a person to feel inferior such as, effect of success, failure, or what others say.
	Relate self theory to own behavior (Ap)	View film or filmstrip which illustrates the self-concept. Point out ways your self-concept affects your own behavior.
The way one feels about himself affects his behavior.	Analyze effect of components of self on behavior (An)	Listen to or read a short story or fairy tale. Identify behavior in the story which shows the personal self, social self, and ideal self. Answer questions such as the following from Jack and the Bean Stalk: How did Jack view himself in comparison to the social self his mother saw? Why was Jack's mother upset when he sold the family cow for a handful of beans? Why did the ogre's wife defend

Peer group attitudes, values, and self-concept influence interaction with others.	Analyze effect of self-concept in various situations (An)	Jack? What element of the self theory is involved? Give examples of behavior that may be used to cover up a poor self-concept. Discuss the following questions: How does one's grooming habits affect or reflect his self-concept? How does being dressed inappropriately for the occasion affect his self-concept?
		Choose a partner of the same sex and face one another. With honesty and consideration tell one another what you see (include physical appearance and behavior). Then tell how you see yourself. Consider the following questions: Why didn't you tell your partner everything that you saw in him? Is your self-concept different with different groups such as, adult, peer groups, or church? Why? How did your personal self influence what you told your partner? How was your personal self influenced by what your partner told you? Change partners (opposite sex, stranger, best friend, etc.) and repeat.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Defining one's ideal self gives the individual a goal to work toward and a measure of his present position.	Identify characteristics of ideal self (K)  Relate class findings about the self theory to personal development (Ap)	Complete the following statement: If I could change myself I would _____.  Coordinating Experience: Write a paper comparing your self-image to the self others see. Write an additional paragraph on what you would like to be (ideal self).
Personal Integration
Accepting and coping with aspects of the self-concept which cannot be changed and working to improve those which can be changed contributes to an integrated self-concept.	Relate satisfaction of basic needs to personal integration (Ap)  Create ways to integrate components of self-concept (S)	Share an observation of how a person's self-concept was improved when a basic need was met. How did the satisfaction of this need contribute to personal integration?  Describe persons whose personal self, social self, and ideal self are not closely related. For example, someone who sees himself as a superior conversationalist and aspires to be a great orator, while others see him as a loud-mouthed bore. What problems may a person have when the three components of his self-concept are not closely integrated? How may a person more closely integrate his self-concept?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Evaluate own ability to cope with personal self, accept past experiences, and progress in future development (C)	Use information presented on components of self to relate how the following questions apply to you: How close are you to what you want to be? What can you do to integrate your ideal self with your personal and social self? How does a positive view of self help one to become other person-centered rather than self-centered? What does it mean to place the past in its proper perspective?

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self--Maturity

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Analyze one's own maturity (An)

Definition
A mature person copes with his environment, has a realistic picture of himself and the world, and can control his emotions.	Define maturity (K)	Divide into buzz groups. Brainstorm for a definition of maturity. Write the definitions on the chalkboard. Compile one class definition.
	Interpret the meaning of maturity (C)	Compare class definition to those given in various textbooks. Discuss.
Types
There are many types of maturity.	Explain the types of maturity (C)	Work in groups to gain information on the following types of maturity: chronological, physical, intellectual, emotional, social, and philosophical. Report findings to class.
	Demonstrate types of maturity (Ap)	Find appropriate pictures to illustrate each type of maturity. Draw conclusions about the relationship of maturity to one's own maturity.
Coordinating Experience : Compare responsibilities of family members of different ages. Draw conclusions about the relation of responsibility to maturity.

Mature Responses
One is not equally mature at all times; the degree of maturity may vary in different situations.	Relate use of defense mechanisms to development of maturity (Ap)	Study pictures or cartoons illustrating use of defense mechanisms. Relate use of defense mechanisms to personal experiences. Suggest how the use of defense mechanisms produced conflict or obscured the pertinent issues of the problem. How did the defense mechanisms contribute to personal security and self-concept at the time? Could the use of defense mechanisms be a positive aspect of maturity? Use case studies, television sequences, cartoons, or one sentence statements to relate the use of defense mechanisms to maturity. Listen to popular recordings and analyze the maturity or immaturity depicted by the lyrics. Coordinating Experience: Relate each type of maturity to your own maturity such as: chronological=18 years; physical=16 years; intellectual=20 years; emotional=19 years; social=17 years; and philosophical=18 years. Ask a family member and friend to rate your levels of maturity. Compare the ratings to your own. Determine areas that need improvement.
	Analyze situations illustrating maturity or immaturity (An)

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self--Popularity

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Discriminate between popularity and personality (An)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Definition
Popularity indicated being approved of by others or pleasing to others.	Define popularity (K)	Brainstorm to formulate a working definition of popularity. Relate to self development.
	Describe popularity (C)	Select a leader, recorder, and time-keeper for "circle" discussion. The leader reads questions pertaining to popularity. Students make a statement about each question. A time-keeper limits statements to one minute. The recorder keeps notes on comments. No one should speak out of turn, not even the leader. The leader summarizes the discussion after each question: What is popularity? What is a popular person? What is considered when peers select a most popular person? How important do parents consider popularity? Can you be popular in one situation and not in another? Give examples. Is success the same thing as popularity? What are contributing factors for popularity with the same sex? for popularity with the opposite sex? (If more than one circle is used, a panel of the leaders or recorders may summarize answers to each question.)

Determinants
"Pecking order" refers to the position one holds in a group in relation to every other member of the group.	Explain "pecking order" (C)	Listen to presentation about Dr. Sylvanus M. Duvall's research on the "pecking order." Discuss the relationship of the human "pecking order" to popularity. Use puppets or other communication media to portray how the same individual may have a different rank in different groups. Draw conclusions about the relationship of the "pecking order" to popularity.
	Relate principles of attraction to development of popularity (Ap)	Study mimeographed information on the principles of attraction. Discuss ways principles of attraction may be a contributing factor to popularity. Share personal observations of instances where popularity was influenced by principles of attraction.
Popularity may be more related to needs of the group than to an individual's personality.	Distinguish between popularity and personality in relation to the "needs of the hour" (An)	Contrast definitions of popularity and personality. Identify situations in which popularity is not synonymous with personality. Coordinating Experience: For FHA, invite a panel of students to discuss what it takes to be popular.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Discriminate between popularity and personality (An)	Study the following situations and relate popularity to personality. Consider the question: Is popularity determined by the need of the hour rather than by personality? Consider the following examples: Hitler may not have had a good personality, but he was popular. While a group leader may be popular with his group, to an outsider he may not appear to have a pleasing personality. The school would have an excellent football team if it had a good quarterback. A student transfers to your school who is skilled in quarterbacking. He is suddenly showered with popularity. Does this mean he has a pleasing personality?
Prices of Popularity	Determine the price one is willing to pay for popularity (An)	List on chalk board ways that persons conform. Decide which conformities are constructive and which are destructive in relation to individual personalities.
A number of factors influence the cost of popularity to a given individual.	Describe ways one can have individuality and still have popularity. Determine constructive and destructive forms of individuality in relation to personality development.

		Coordinating Experience: React to the question: What price am I willing to pay for popularity? View filmstrip to gain an understanding of ways conformity and individuality exist as pressures on young persons. How could ethical compromise contribute to or detract from popularity?
	Analyze pressures for conformity and individuality (An)

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self--Values, Standards, and Goals

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Organize own values, standards, and goals (S)

Definitions
Values, standards, and goals give direction and purpose to one's life.		Define values, goals, and standards (K)	Compile definitions of values, goals, and standards. Compare to textbook definitions.
		Illustrate values, goals and standards held by young people (C)	Give examples of values, goals, and standards commonly held by young people.  Read a case study exemplifying the importance of values and goals. Describe the behavior of the individuals in the study. What influenced their behavior?
Development
Values, standards, and goals develop relative to one's experiences.		Explain how values, goals, and standards are formed (C)	View transparencies which reflect personal values, goals, and standards.  View and discuss a filmstrip to clarify values, standards, and goals. How were values, standards, and goals learned from early and continued life experiences?
		Show how family experiences influence the stability of one's values goals, and standards (Ap)	Read case studies exemplifying how family experiences influence the stability of one's values, goals, and standards.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Family experiences influence one's values, standards, and goals.	Associate family experiences with the stability of one's values, standards, and goals (An)	Analyze an individual's value and goal orientation who has been reared in the following family situations: family in which there are no rules and regulations, family in which one parent rules today and the other tomorrow, authoritarian family, or democratic family.
Demonstrate influences on the development of values (Ap)	Write a short story or play depicting several influences upon the development of values or read a short story or play and point out the influences on the value development of one of the characters.	Prepare questions for an interview sheet to discover personal values.
Understanding how values are developed contributes to tolerance of those who hold values different from oneself.	Analyze situations in which values, have become internalized (An)	Interview persons in various age groups to discover their values such as, junior-high, high school, and adults. Compare findings and discuss what influenced the development of their values. Did you find any differences in values held by the three groups? How will the differences found, if any, affect the ability of these groups to get along? Will understanding how values are developed help in your relationships with persons who hold other values?

Identification
Ability to identify one's values, standards, and goals contributes to purposeful living.	Analyze personal values, standards, and goals (An)	Coordinating Experience: Write a paper to show why it is sometimes necessary to risk being unpopular in order to uphold your values, goals and standards.
	Compare stated values, standards, and goals to actual motivation of behavior (An)	List things in life that are of personal value to you. Rank items on the list in order of importance, where possible.  Make a quick recall of ways your time was spent in the last week and ways your money was spent in the last week.  Compare your actions to your list of personal values. Draw conclusions about the reality of the values.
		List your long-range, short-range, and immediate goals. Compare this list of goals to your priority list of personal values. What is the relationship between future goals and present actions?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Analyze values, goals, and standards reflected in given situations (An)	Identify the goals, standards and values in each of the following statements. Tell how the behavior of each individual in the examples will be influenced by his values, goals, and standards. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1) Tom wants to graduate from high school and is satisfied with a "C" average. (goal--graduation; standard--"C" average; value--job security)</li> <li>2) Joan gets up 15 minutes early in order to put on false eyelashes. (goal--look better; standard--how much make up is applied; value--attention, recognition)</li> <li>3) Bill works after school to buy a used car. (goal--car; standard--used instead of new; value--independence, status)</li> <li>4) Susan wants to babysit in order to buy a new dress for the dance. She turns down a chance to iron for Mrs. Jones. (goal--new dress; standard--limited in type of job she would accept; value--peer acceptance)</li> </ol>
Ability to identify one's own values, goals, and standards enhances one's appreciation of himself.	Organize one's own standards (S)	Coordinating Experience: Develop a list of personal standards in relation to the ranked list of values previously compiled for tasks you perform at home and at school.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Standards may vary from one person or situation to another.	Determine reasons values, goals, and standards differ (An)	Discuss examples in which people have the same values and goals but different standards.  Coordinating Experiences: Obtain a ranked list of values, standards, and goals from siblings, parents, and grandparents. Compare these values, standards, and goals with your personal lists. Determine reasons for similarities or differences.
Influence
Understanding one's values, goals, and standards contributes to appreciation of oneself.	Analyze ways values, goals, and standards influence behavior (An)	Examine the influence of the peer group on values, goals, and standards. Identify conflicts that may result from differences in values, goals, and standards of the individual and the group.  Collect a series of advertisements to study the influence of values in mass media. How do these advertisements influence teenage behavior? 		Coordinating Experience: Analyze the values that may influence the behavior of someone that you find particularly hard to get along with. Compare these values with values that you hold.

CONCEPT: Appreciation of Self--Personal Philosophy of Life

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Compile a beginning philosophy of life (S)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding factors that affect personal philosophy of life contributes to appreciation of self.	Define philosophy of life (K)	Research theories of great philosophers. Define components of their philosophies. Restate these philosophies in your own words. Define philosophy of life.
	Explain how a philosophy of life develops (C)	Study Aesop's Fables and relate to contemporary society and personal development. Discuss how one obtains a philosophy of life.
	Relate study of philosophies to development of personal philosophy of life (Ap)	Collect mottos or maxims that reflect philosophies of life. Share with classmates. Discuss how these mottos may reflect personal philosophy.
One's personal philosophy of life continues to develop throughout life and affects the way one relates to others.	Distinguish factors that contribute to development of personal philosophy of life (An)	Read interviews of well-known personalities or articles exemplifying philosophies of life such as, "My Most Unforgettable Character" in Reader's Digest ; women's, television, or movie magazines; or newspapers. What influenced these persons in the development of their philosophies? What role did values, goals, and standards have in the development of their philosophies?

Ability to state one's own philosophy of life contributes to self understanding and appreciation.	Organize a statement of one's personal philosophy of life (S)	Listen to and ask questions of resource persons who share their philosophies with class. Determine values and other factors which have influenced their philosophies. Discuss. Solve the problems presented in case situations. Use concepts formulated in previous unit to support answers. Identify conflicts that may result from differences in values, goals, and standards of self and others. Analyze responses to situations and to maturity levels. What basic needs were not met that produced conflict? Were all components of the self well integrated in the situations? Coordinating Experience: Read autobiographies of famous persons. Relate their philosophies of life to elements in your own philosophy. Compose an essay describing your philosophy of life.

CONCEPT: Self in Groups--Family

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Propose ways to relate more effectively as a family member (S)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Definition  The family as the basic social unit assumes similar functions in all societies.	Define family (K)	Brainstorm to answer the question: What is a family? Compile a class definition and compare to definitions of the family in textbooks.  Discuss the two characteristics which all families have in common: They are bound together by ties of blood, adoption, or kinship. They have a common residence.  Give examples of television programs that identify different family compositions. Draw conclusions. Relate family composition to family characteristics.
Constellation  Family interaction is a major determinant of family harmony.	Define family constellations (K)  Give examples of interaction in various groups (C)	Explore resources to develop a working definition of family constellations.  Respond to the question: What does interaction mean? Give examples of interaction in family, in classroom, and with friends.

Functions
The functions of the family are child bearing, child rearing, regulation of behavior, meeting basic needs of its members, and preparation of individuals for meaningful existence in society.	Identify functions of the family (K)	Explore references to define and gain an understanding of the functions of the family. Listen to a presentation on the basic functions of families, including psychological well-being of adults, physical and psychological care of children, socialization of children, education, and economic support.
	Give examples of ways family functions have changed (C)	Discuss ways family functions have changed in the past fifty years. Which family functions are increasingly in the hands of social agencies? What are the advantages and disadvantages of these changes?
Family functions are changing due to changes in our society.	Show changes in family functions (Ap)	Collect clippings from newspapers or magazines or recall a movie or television situation which depicts changes in family functions.
	Analyze ways social agencies affect performance of family functions (An)	Participate in a panel discussion to analyze why social agencies have taken over many family functions. Consider

All families have similar functions; they differ by the priorities each function receives.	Differentiate between ways functions are assumed by different families (An)	the problem of educating individuals in America. Can the family assume the total role of education? Why? Use case studies to analyze how a Negro family, a poverty stricken Appalachian family, or a New York Puerto Rican family assumes and interprets family functions as compared to a middle class American Anglo family. What are the functions basic to each of the above family types? What functions receive priority? Coordinating Experience: Read books about family crises in our society. Prepare a case study to analyze how the characters assume universal family functions during various crises in life.
Life Cycle The structure and functions of the family unit change with transition from one stage in the life cycle to the next.	Identify stages of the family life cycle (K)	Study transparencies of the stages in the family life cycle: beginning, expanding, contracting, and later years.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Each stage in the family life cycle requires new adjustments.	Summarize adjustments and satisfactions of each stage of the family life cycle (C)	Divide into buzz groups and discuss characteristics, problems, and major expenses of each stage such as, housing needs, financial adjustments, responsibilities, realignment, developmental tasks of the family. Is it possible for a family to be in more than one stage at the same time? How would this increase family responsibilities and/or problems?
	Show the stage in the life cycle for families in given situations (Ap)	Determine what stage(s) your own family is in now. What adjustments are being forced on the family? What satisfactions do you feel are found in this stage in the family life cycle?
	Analyze ways various stages in the family life cycle influence family adjustments, responsibilities, and activities (An)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA, invite community members who are representative of each stage in the family life cycle to participate in a panel. Discuss the adjustments, responsibilities, and satisfactions of each stage. Prior to panel discussion divide into buzz groups representing each stage in the life cycle. Prepare questions to ask the guest panel. Summarize ideas presented.
		Point out ways that knowledge of the family life cycle can help families to anticipate and prepare for situations as they occur.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Relate activities and responsibilities to the stages in the family life cycle (Ap)	Construct a bulletin board depicting the responsibilities and activities of the family in various stages of the life cycle.
Role Identification
Clarification of family roles promotes successful relationships as a family member.	Identify the functions of family roles (K)	Read and discuss references to gain an understanding of the functions of roles in the family.
	Show how family roles are changing (Ap)	Read case studies of families or view family television programs and indicate whether family roles are traditional or contemporary. Which family member's role has changed the most in relation to traditional roles?
	Distinguish between traditional, contemporary, and future family roles (An)	Identify traditional, contemporary, and future roles of various family members (father, mother, son, daughter, grandfather, grandmother). List on chalkboard. Compare roles of various family members. How have they changed? Why? What future changes are predicted?
Conflict in role perception affects family cohesiveness.	Determine the influence of role expectations on the individual (An)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA or community activity, use puppets to portray different family roles.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Role conflicts can have detrimental effects on family relationships.	Explain the effect of role conflict on family relationships (C)	Make a list of your expectations for roles in a family. Identify the factors that have influenced these expectations. Use the following questions to summarize information on family roles: What factors contribute to an individual's understanding of a role? How does a girl learn to be a woman? How does a boy learn to be a man? How is role expectation related to role satisfaction? What happens when role expectations are not met? For example, a husband expects his wife to pay the bills but she does not think it is her role. A wife expects her husband to help care for the young children, but he thinks of this as the wife's role. What conflicts may result if the wife works outside the home?
	Predict possible role conflicts among family members (Ap)	Present an original skit depicting the effect of role conflicts among family members. Work in small groups to prepare a list of possible family role conflicts. Consider solutions to the conflicts and share with class.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Assess personal satisfaction in assumption of family roles (E)	Coordinating Experience: Assume as many of the roles of the homemaker as possible such as, manager, purchaser, companion, hostess, nurse. Keep a diary and record evaluations of the importance of each role, degree of family approval or disapproval about the assumption of the role, and the satisfaction achieved from the role. Observe the roles of family members in the other families. How do they differ from your own family? Report your findings to class.
Adult-Adult Relationships
The establishment of satisfying communication between adults contributes to successful family living.	Define communication (K)	Identify different types of communication illustrated by pictures or cartoons. In class discussion, formulate a working definition of communication.
	Illustrate types of communication (C)	Give examples of effective communication, poor communication, and no communication between husband and wife. As references use television programs, books, magazines, movies, or real life situations.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Relate the importance of communication to successful family living (Ap)	Use the following questions to discuss the above examples: What stage in the family life cycle did each example represent? How does husband-wife communication affect family living? Is husband-wife communication more important in any one stage of the family life cycle than another? Are the communications needs the same in all stages of the family life cycle? Explain your answers.
Parent-Child Relationships
The ability to establish satisfactory human relationships contributes to successful family living.	Identify responsibilities important for desirable parent-child relationships (K)	Brainstorm to identify responsibilities of parents who have teen-agers. Compare the class list to an authoritative list. List the responsibilities of teen-agers. Compare the class list to an authoritative list.
	Give examples of responsible behavior of family members (C)	Compare your family members' responsibilities to the authoritative lists.
	Prepare information to prove or disprove the theory of the generation gap (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA, debate: "Generation Gap or Communication Gap?" Draw conclusions based on responsibilities of parents and teen-agers

Sibling Relations
Sibling position and perception influence the ability of siblings to relate effectively to one another.	List factors affecting sibling relationships (K)	Present oral report on book about parent-child relationships.
		Define sibling.
		Identify factors affecting sibling relationships such as, position and perception.
		Research materials to find information concerning the effect of position and perception on sibling relationships.
	Summarize ways factors affect sibling relationships (C)	Give examples of personal experiences or observations where factors of position and perception were in evidence.
	Show the effect of sibling position on behavior (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: Write a case study about a sibling relationship. Show the effect of sibling position on behavior. What conflicts were caused by sibling position?
		Discuss the question: How do siblings portray family unity outside the home?

Values, Goals, and Standards
Identification of family values, goals, and standards contributes to family harmony and quality of family life.	Outline family values, goals, and standards (An)	Relate previous learnings about values, goals, and standards to the family. Identify your family's values. What are the elements which may characterize family values such as, type of home, community activities, and level of education? What goals and standards indicate personal and family values?
	Relate values, goals, and standards to behavior (An)	Read case studies. Analyze the different families to determine how values influence behavior. Categorize the family's orientation by one of the following: things, people, ideas, activities, or status. Predict ways your values for your future family may be different from those of your present family.
	Analyze changes in values, goals, and standards during the family life cycle (An)	Determine ways values, goals, and standards may change as family members progress through the stages of the life cycle. Identify values, goals, and standards likely to be important in each stage of the life cycle.

CONCEPT: Self in Groups--Community

Neighbors and Friends
Understanding interpersonal behavior improves one's ability to relate effectively to others.	Explain ways personal needs are met through neighbors and friends (C)	Discuss ways personal needs may be met through neighbors and friends.
	Analyze personal responsibility to community (An)	Analyze your responsibility as a family member to community and neighborhood.
	Analyze how family responsibility is related to quality of community life (An)	React to the statement: "A neighborhood is as good as the families who live in it." Coordinating Experience: For community activity, work with neighbors to organize your block for purposes such as, block parties, cleanup, beautification.
Institutions and Services
Appreciation of community institutions and services contributes to their effective utilization by the family.	Analyze ways attitudes toward community institutions and services influence the well-being of the community (An)	Determine how attitudes are molded in respect to community services and institutions. How do these attitudes influence the well-being of the community?

	Propose ways the family may contribute to children's appreciation of community (S)	Role play ways parents can instill constructive or destructive attitudes in children toward community institutions and/or services such as, policeman, church, voting, school. How will these attitudes affect relationships between the community and the family? Recall specific derogatory situations in which adults have made comments about employees in community institutions and services. How will these comments contribute to the formation of young persons' attitudes? Coordinating Experience: For FHA or community activity, present a series of programs or prepare a series of articles designed to improve attitudes toward persons in service jobs in your community.
Employer-Employee Relationships	Identify characteristics that contribute to effective working relationships between employers and employees (K)	Listen to an employer discuss characteristics which enhance job relationships between employers and employees.
Understanding human relationships contributes to more successful employer-employee relationships.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Ethical behavior contributes to effective employer-employee relationships.	Explain the communication responsibilities of employer and employee (C)	Discuss ways employees can promote better communications with the employer. What are the responsibilities of the employer and of the employee?
	Define ethics (K)	Write a definition of ethics. Discuss the meaning of ethics.
	Summarize job ethics (C)	Compose a code of ethics for various occupations such as, doctors, policemen, teachers, and real estate agents. Compare the lists and relate to the responsibilities of the employer-employee. Compare your code of ethics to codes prepared for various professions.
		Prepare a "question" box for questions relating to job ethics. Draw out questions for class discussion.
	Demonstrate effective employer-employee relationships (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA, present an original skit on "How to Keep a Job" illustrating effective employer-employee relationships.

CONCEPT: Self in Groups--Interpersonal Techniques

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Analyze the effectiveness of interpersonal techniques in relating to others (An)

Communication
Development of a communication system in marriage provides for a stable relationship.	Identify the role of verbal and non-verbal communication in human relationships (K)	Discuss methods of verbal and non-verbal communication. Identify the role of verbal and non-verbal communication in human relationships.
	Explain ways attitudes are reflected in non-verbal communications (C)	Give examples of ways attitudes are reflected through non-verbal communication. Collect cartoons or pictures that exemplify facial expressions or physical actions in which an attitude is reflected. How can recognition and understanding of the "signs" of non-verbal communication contribute to effective relationships?
	Demonstrate non-verbal communication (Ap)	Practice conveying messages to classmates through non-verbal communication.
	Analyze ways clarity in communication contributes to effective relationships (An)	Send classmate "A" out of the room while class prepares for communication demonstration. Select classmate "B" to sit with back to chalkboard. Distribute mimeographed sheets with geometric design. "B" tells "A" how to draw the design on board. "A" cannot ask questions and

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
		"B" cannot see what "A" draws. Compare final drawing on board to mimeographed sheet. Repeat demonstration with different design, except "A" and "B" may face each other and may communicate. Compare results of the second experiment. Explain how this demonstration illustrates the importance of clear communication techniques. How could failure to communicate contribute to unsatisfactory relationships?
	Infer responsibilities for communication (An)	React to the statement, "Communication is a 'two-way street.'"
Understanding factors contributing to poor communication improves ability to communicate effectively.	Identify factors contributing to poor communication (K)	Discuss factors which contribute to poor communication such as, not listening, losing temper, leaving room, misinterpretation of non-verbal communication.
	Explain factors contributing to effective communication (C)	Discuss the following statement: Two people can best communicate on areas of overlapping backgrounds of experience.
	Demonstrate the importance of common background for effective communication (Ap)	Use overlapping circles to illustrate the common background of experiences which are the bases for communication in the following situations: (1) a girl and boy discussing football and (2) two football

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Group Dynamics
Understanding the dynamic interaction of groups contributes to effective human relationships.	Define a group (K)  Give examples of groups in everyday life (C)	players discussing the sport. Why should the illustration in the second situation have a larger overlapping area than the circles in the first situation? How may the overlapping area in the first situation be enlarged?
	Determine what constitutes a group.
	Give examples of groups with which you are familiar such as, family, cliques, committees, and choir.
	Determine the reciprocal influence of groups and individuals (An)	Participate in a panel discussion and consider the following questions: How does one's self-concept affect his behavior in a group? Have you observed the "pecking order" at work in a group? Give examples. What effect does the group have on an individual such as, group expectations, behavior, character, and personality? What effect does the individual have on the group such as, leadership qualities and responsibility?

Empathy
The ability to empathize contributes to effective human relationships.	Explain the role of empathy in human relationships (C)	Define empathy and explain its importance in human relationships. Listen to case studies to gain an insight into the feelings of the persons involved. With which character did you identify? Why? View a filmstrip explaining the role of empathy in human relationships. Participate in a role play, group discussion, and/or games. React to questions such as: How could empathy improve interpersonal relationships? What effect does empathy have on our actions? Can a person have too much empathy?
	Discover the role of empathy in human relationships (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: Write a book report analyzing how developing empathy with the characters can contribute to self-understanding and to effective human relationships. How did your views change as a result of empathizing with the characters in the book?
	Show ways empathy contributes to human relationships (Ap)

Perception
Ability to correctly perceive another's feelings contributes to effective communication.	Define perception (K)	Determine what is meant by perception. How is perception related to effective human relationships?  View a filmstrip on perception. How are impressions formed?
	Explain the role of perception as an interpersonal technique (C)	Participate in role play, group discussion, and games to determine how perception affects behavior.  Explain how you perceived a recent school event such as, an assembly program, pep rally, or election. How does your perception compare to that of your classmates? teachers? others? How does your perception affect your behavior? your classmates behavior?
Rights and Privileges of Self and Others
Understanding the rights and privileges of persons involved contributes to effective interpersonal relationships.	Identify own privileges (K)  Explain factors influencing personal privileges (C)	List privileges that your family allows. Compare this list to those of your classmates.  Discuss what determines the privileges an individual has at home.

	Compare responsibilities assumed to privileges granted (An)	List responsibilities assumed at home compared to those of other class members. Discuss relationship of assuming responsibilities to earning privileges. List privileges and responsibilities related to school. Make a list of areas where there is a need for accepting additional responsibility.
Each individual must accept certain responsibilities in a democratic society.	Identify individual responsibilities (K)  Explain personal acceptance of family and community responsibilities (C)	Examine resources to determine individual responsibilities in a democratic society.  Listen to resource persons such as, community leaders, law enforcement officers, or health officials, evaluate personal acceptance of family and community responsibilities. Discuss.
	Analyze acceptance of family and community responsibilities (An)	Coordinating Experience: Analyze your acceptance of family and community responsibilities.

CONCEPT: Self in the Future--Love Relationships

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Analyze role of dating in forming love relationships (An)

Subconcept: and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
---------------------------------	-----------------------	-------------------------------------

Stages of Love

Mature love, like other forms of development, occurs in sequential steps; if any step is skipped, mature love is less likely to occur.

Define love (K)

Explain the stages of love (C)

Write your definition of love. Share with classmates. (Save for evaluation at end of unit.)

View transparency, chalkboard diagram, or bulletin board on the stages of love: self-love; amoral; expedient; others--adults, same age, same sex, opposite sex (from group or crowd only, to limited qualifications, to very limited qualifications); love of the one (from infatuation through normal stages of development to mature love).

Relate progression through stages of love to development of mature love (Ap)

Consider the following questions pertaining to the stages of love: Is it possible to skip a stage and still reach mature love? What may cause failure to proceed through all stages of love? Under what circumstances may a person repeat the stages of love? For example, divorce, death of mate. Why is it important to proceed through several stages of infatuation? What may happen

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding the difference between infatuation and mature love may lead to greater satisfaction in dating relationships.	Explain differences between infatuation and mature love (C)	if a person married during the stage of infatuation? What are some characteristics such as, jealousy, focus on physical attraction only, failure to face reality, which may cause a person to progress only to infatuation? What are characteristics of mature love?
		Study information comparing love and infatuation.
		Bring advertisements to class that predict love or happiness for those who purchase the product. How can advertisements contribute to a false impression of mature love?
	Relate psychological differences between the sexes to dating behavior (Ap)	Select characteristics that differentiate between masculine and feminine dating behavior from case studies.
		View film to study the psychological differences between the sexes. Draw conclusions about the relationships between these differences and understanding the degree of commitment in a relationship.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Mature love implies an increased capacity to care about the well-being of another person and a realistic acceptance of that person.	Analyze situations characterized by infatuation or mature love (An)	Observe examples of infatuation or mature love on television programs, in school situations, or among peers. React using criteria for determining infatuation or mature love. Evaluate your personal definition of love to determine which stage(s) of love it exemplifies. How would you change your definition now?
Interrelationships of Love
Development of mature love is related to other forms of development.	Compare development of mature love to other forms of development (An)	Discuss questions such as: How does one's personal character development affect a love relationship? Is personal maturity a factor in distinguishing between love and infatuation? How does a positive view of self help a person to become other person-centered rather than self-centered? How does one's stage of personality development affect a love relationship? React to the statement: You must love yourself before you can love another person. Coordinating Experience: For FHA, invite a minister to discuss: "The Meaning of True Love."

Behavioral Codes and Mores in Dating
Behavior codes reflect current attitudes in the youth culture.	Identify cultural differences in dating (K)	Use resource materials to study cultural differences in dating practices.
	Explain ways dating patterns reflect culture (C)	Give examples of different cultures' dating patterns. Which patterns are prevalent in your community?
		Share your knowledge about dating customs in other countries. Compare these to American customs. Discuss reasons for differences and similarities.
		Listen to resource persons describe cultural differences in dating within this country.
	Demonstrate dating etiquette (Ap)	Role play dating situations depicting dating etiquette. Discuss proper and improper dating etiquette. Continue role play by reversing roles. For example, girl plays part of boy.
	Analyze ways society and culture determine dating customs (An)	React to the question: Are traditional role expectations applicable to contemporary dating situations? Why or why not?
Knowledge of dating patterns contributes to satisfying dating relationships.	Outline the reasons for dating (K)	Brainstorm to identify reasons for dating. Compile a class list of reasons for dating.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Steady dating may have both advantages and disadvantages.	Explain the influence of the stages of love on dating patterns (C) Point out advantages and disadvantages of steady dating (An)	Discuss dating patterns to identify their relationship to the stages of love such as, group dating, casual dating, steady dating, and engagement. Survey peers and adults to discover prevalent attitudes toward steady dating. Compile results and have student panel present the information from the survey. Summarize presentation.
Knowledge of dating terms contributes to effective communication about dating.	Explain dating terms (C)	Discuss the differences between steady dating for convenience and steady dating as a type of informal engagement. List advantages and disadvantages of each. React to the statement: Being promised is an important step toward marriage. Discuss current dating expressions in your school. Determine how use of terms vary from group to group. How may these expressions cause misunderstandings with parents? What terms do they use relating to dating? Correlate with current terms. Do any of the same terms have different meanings today?
		Write current dating terms and synonymous terms used by parents on cards. Distribute

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
		one card to each class member. Try to pair the current term with the synonym used by parents.

CONCEPT: Self in the Future--Preparation for Successful Relationships in Marriage

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Evaluate factors contributing to successful relationships in marriage (E)

Factors in Mate Selection
Knowledge of factors influencing mate selection may increase the likelihood of marital success.	Identify reasons for marriage (K)	Brainstorm to identify reasons people marry. Identify the reasons which could cause problems in marriage such as, status, pregnancy, avoidance of unhappy home.
	Identify concepts of a satisfactory mate (K)	List qualities you want in a marriage partner in three columns titled: necessary, important, and desirable.  Use your list to rate a person you are presently dating or someone you would like to date. Identify: qualities the person does possess, qualities the person does not possess, and qualities the person may never possess. How does the person you are dating compare to your ideal list?
Complementary personalities contribute to marital success.	Explain factors that influence one's concept of a satisfactory mate (C)	List several factors such as, parents or teachers, that have influenced your concept of a satisfactory mate. Explain why you listed each factor.
	Cite the importance of complementary needs in mate selection (K)	Listen to a presentation on the importance of complementary needs in mate selection.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Interpret complementary needs and contradictory needs (C)	List on chalkboard needs which are contradictory instead of complementary. Consider needs such as: dominance vs. submissive, to nurture vs. to be nurtured, recognition vs. deference, to include others vs. to be included, and to give affection vs. to receive affection.
	Analyze the role of complementary needs in marriage (An)	Use case studies to identify complementary needs in marriage or situations where needs are in conflict. Discuss the following questions in relation to the case studies: What are some examples of contradictory needs such as, sociable vs. solitary, very thrifty vs. extremely generous? What happens if dominant marries dominant? What happens if submissive marries submissive? How does one's family influence his needs such as, a boy who has been dominated by his mother? Most people have a variety of needs. How are priorities of needs determined?
		React to the statement: The farther one partner is off-center, the farther the other one must go in the opposite direction to be a complementary partner.

	Determine factors influencing selection of mate (An)	Coordinating Experience: Select the ten most important factors you would consider when choosing a marriage partner. Give reasons for your priorities.
Marital success is more likely when a couple has similar interests.	Infer common social and recreational interests that contribute to marital success (An)	Select from a list of pastimes the interests you would like to share with a mate. Compare your list with classmates' lists.  Give examples from television shows or personal observation of instances where common interests have strengthened a marriage.  Point out ways that individual interests may contribute to stability or instability in marriage.
A lasting marriage is more likely if there is similarity in social, economic, cultural, and religious backgrounds.	Point out possible problems of an inter-class marriage (An)	Distinguish between characteristics of the social classes in America and predict problems which may arise in inter-class marriages.  Coordinating Experience: Give an oral report to the class on a book which tells the story of adjustments in an inter-class marriage. Discuss effects of cultural upbringing on individual attitudes toward marriage and childrearing.

	Distinguish adjustments necessitated by interracial marriage (An)	Listen to married couples who have interracial backgrounds discuss problems and adjustments that must be made.
	Evaluate the role of religion in mate selection (E)	Point out possible problems in an interracial marriage.  Listen to minister and/or priest speak on spiritual values which contribute to permanency and happiness in marriage. Discuss the religious conflicts of children reared in inter-faith homes.
Parental approval contributes to marital success and stability.	Analyze the influence of parental approval on marital success (An)	Write a paragraph on the topic, "But I'm marrying Joe--not his family." Share paragraph with class.  Discuss the following: How does parental approval contribute to marital success? What problems may arise in a marriage entered without parental approval? List reasons for parental objections to a marriage. Which ones are justified?
Health may affect marital success.	Determine the influence of health as a factor in mate selection (An)	List on chalkboard physical traits which are inheritable. From personal observation, give examples of inheritable traits which could affect mental or physical health or life span. Predict how these hereditary traits could affect a marriage.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Similarity in educational backgrounds generally contributes to marital success.	Infer ways educational background is related to success in marriage (An)	Discuss when and/or if a person should tell his fiancée about the possibilities of his passing on deficient genetic traits. React to the situation: Even though Jane and Tom had similar educational backgrounds when they married, will they continue to be compatible after Jane puts Tom through college? Discuss problems which may arise.
Age and maturity affect chances of marital success.	Distinguish the roles of age and maturity in mate selection (C)	Explore references to identify the role of age and maturity in mate selection. React to the following questions: How close should husband and wife be in age? How old should you be when you marry? Do age differences have the same significance for a couple ages 15 and 20 as it would for a couple ages 20 and 25? What role does maturity play in your answer? What problems do you envision for a couple with extreme age differences?
Teen-age marriages face more obstacles to success than most marriages of older couples.	Explain the advantages and disadvantages of teenage marriage (C)	View filmstrip on teen-age marriages.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Realistic financial planning contributes to likelihood of marital success.	Demonstrate ability to make financial decisions (Ap)	Participate in a panel discussion on the advantages and disadvantages of teenage marriage.
	Analyze adjustment problems incurred in marriages with different backgrounds (An)	Plan a budget for newlyweds on the chalkboard. Include the following factors: take home pay for a high school graduate, realistic expenditures, and problems in balancing the budget.
		Listen to case studies about young people who are married and have different backgrounds such as, education, dating experience, social behavior, emotional maturity. Give opinions on why each couple may have adjustment problems. Make suggestions on how each couple could cope with or eliminate their problems.
		React to the statement: All marriages are mixed marriages.
Evaluate readiness for marriage in relation to realistic concepts of marriage (E)		Coordinating Experience: For FHA, prepare an original skit titled "Successful Marriages Can't Be Built on Love Alone." Appraise characters' readiness for marriage. How realistic were their concepts of marriage?

Courtship provides an opportunity for the couple to get to know one another.	Compare the length of courtship to adjustments in marriage (An)	Read magazine articles that illustrate the engagement period. How could the couple change any immature reactions involved so that adult responsibilities are accepted and practiced?
		Study resources to identify the relationship of courtship length to marital success. Examine statistical studies to broaden this concept.
		Coordinating Experience: Interview parents, lawyers, and/or marriage counselors to determine "ideal" length of courtship for a happy marriage. Compare and interpret their responses.
	Predict factors that contribute to establishment of compatibility in engagement (Ap)	Divide into buzz groups. Define the importance of compatibility in engagement as a determining factor in transition to marriage. Compare definitions. Refer to the predictive factors of mate selection discussed earlier. Relate these factors to compatibility during engagement.
Awareness of danger signals in engagement contributes to responsible decisions regarding marriage.	Determine danger signals in the engagement period (An)	Explore resources to determine danger signals in the engagement period. Give examples of danger signs. What action may be appropriate for each danger signal?

Society's View of the Single Person

List facts about single persons (K)

Answer the following true-false statements to clarify your understanding of single persons:
(T) 1. There are more women than men of marriageable age.

(T) 2. There are "old maids" and "old bachelors" who are married.

(T) 3. Girls who live in cities have less chance for marriage than those who live in rural or outlying areas.

(T) 4. Very few people remain single because they don't have an opportunity to marry.

(T) 5. A larger percentage of girls who go to college remain single.

(T) 6. The more education a woman has, the less likely she is to marry.

(T) 7. Marital status may be a factor in job promotion.

(T) 8. There are some people who should remain single.

(T) 9. A single person may have a poor self-concept as a result of social pressure.

(T) 10. There are higher rates of suicide,

Persons Who Choose Not to Marry
Persons may choose not to marry for a variety of reasons.	Recognize reasons some persons choose not to marry (K)	View bulletin board which illustrates reasons people choose to remain single.  Listen to a panel composed of unmarried career woman, elderly unmarried person, bachelor, priest, and nun discuss their feelings about being single. Participate in a question and answer session after panel discussion. Keep a record of answers to questions for future reference.
Some persons, because of physical or mental health, should not marry.	List reasons persons should not marry (K)	Brainstorm to identify reasons people should not marry. Consider the social and marital consequences resulting when these people do marry.
	Explain differences between couples who should not marry and those who should not have children (C)	Differentiate between couples who should not have children and those who should not marry.
Adjustments to Being Single
Being single in a marriage and family oriented society requires special adjustments.	Recognize the advantages and disadvantages of remaining single (C)	List advantages and disadvantages of remaining single. What advantages and disadvantages did the panel discuss earlier?

Knowledge of factors contributing to marital success may help a couple avoid disillusionment.	Predict effects of values, goals, and standards on marital success (C)	Observe the effect standards and values have on personal concept of a successful marriage. Discuss.
	Outline personal standards for success in marriage. (An)	Identify your personal standards for success in marriage. What were underlying factors which influenced your standards? How important is it for a couple to have similar standards? What effect might different standards have on family relationships?
	Analyze ways gratification of personal needs contributes to marital success (An)	Collect pictures or cartoons that illustrate conflict in marriage. How does marital success relate to fulfillment of personal needs? How many of these represent "tremendous trifles?" List trifles over which couples frequently disagree.
	Identify factors which contribute to a successful marriage (K)	Study references to find factors which may contribute to a successful marriage. Make a class list.
Estimate ways couples may contribute to marital success (C)		Work in groups to give examples of ways couples may use the factors listed previously to form a successful marriage. Report to class and explain reasons for each suggestion.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Preparation for successful marriage is facilitated by an understanding of marital adjustments.	Explain the need for adjustments in marriage (C)	React to the statement: "The ideal marriage has no need for adjustment."  Identify adjustments which are common to all newlyweds, including: economic, in-laws, physical compatibility, social and recreational activities, religion, training and discipline of children, and tremendous trifles.
	Show needs for adjustments in marriage (Ap)	Role play a domestic scene in the early months of a marriage in which both husband and wife are trying to get each other to change certain habits. What causes their frustration?
		Collect pictures and cartoons depicting in-law relationships. Who is usually blamed for in-law problems? Compile rules for good in-law relationships.
	Compare adjustments in marriage throughout family life cycle (An)	Discuss ways adjustments will differ in each stage of the family life cycle.
Happy marriage relationships are dependent on conscious efforts of the marriage partners.	Produce evidence that illustrates necessary marital adjustments (Ap)	Study stories and articles on adjustments that newlyweds encounter.  Coordinating Experience: Read books which give guidelines for establishing homes. Report to class.

Role expectations of husband and wife may need to be altered to achieve satisfactory adjustments in marriage.	Identify role expectations (K)	List the tasks and responsibilities of the husband and the wife. Which are based on tradition? Under what circumstances may tasks be performed by either? What conflicts may occur in marriage over role expectations?
Family routines are related to stage in the family life cycle.	Identify factors affecting family routine (K)	Identify changes which may occur in family routines as the family moves from one stage of the life cycle to another.
	Summarize factors that influence family routines (C)	Discuss the following questions: How do factors such as, the stage in the family life cycle; family values, goals, and standards; influence the role of each family member.
	Predict factors influencing family routines (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: Write a report describing ways each of the following factors affect your family's routines: stage in the family life cycle; family values, goals, and standards; and occupation, health, and role of each family member.
	Distinguish masculine and feminine roles in assuming family routines (An)	View film on realistic concepts of marriage. Talk about areas which must be considered within the masculine and feminine roles in assuming family routines.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
		Listen to resource people from different stages of marriage discuss "Responsibilities and routines of marriage." What different solutions were presented for the same problem?
	Compile a list of routines to assume after marriage (S)	List responsibilities or routines that persons must assume after marriage (male and female). Compare these to responsibilities you already have assumed.
	Appraise realistic attitudes in assuming family routines (E)	Interview couples exemplifying the actual situations mentioned above. Compare to ideas presented in skit and determine how realistic class ideas were.
Conflict in marriage is one way of striving for marital adjustment.	Illustrate relationships between role expectations and conflict (C)	Role play situations in which husband's and wife's role expectations are in conflict. Repeat each situation to show how it may be solved more logically.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Knowledge of techniques for problem solving contributes to resolution of conflict.	Identify steps in problem solving (K)	View bulletin board or transparencies on the following steps of constructive problem solving: identify the problem, identify values and goals involved, consider resources, consider alternatives, consider possible outcomes, choose an alternative, put plan into action, and evaluate the results.
Ability to resolve conflict effectively contributes to marital success.	Explain implementation of the steps in problem solving (C)	Discuss how problem solving steps are used in split second decisions, as well as in long term decisions.
	Give examples of methods of resolving conflict (C)	Determine how a working knowledge of the steps in problem solving could be beneficial in marriage adjustments.
	Predict results of various methods of resolving conflict (Ap)	Use case studies to explore methods of resolving conflict in marriage through compromise, one person giving in, tabling differences, or quarreling.
		Discuss the following questions: If one person gives in, is the problem solved? What are the consequences of tabling differences by walking out of room or not reaching any agreement?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Knowing reasons people quarrel may help prevent or contribute to understanding of quarrels.	Identify the reasons for quarreling (K)	Brainstorm to identify reasons people quarrel. Are there benefits from quarreling? List the benefits.
Understanding types of quarreling contributes to establishment of effective means of settling family differences.	Illustrate constructive and destructive quarreling (C)  Analyze the usefulness of quarreling (An)	Differentiate between constructive and destructive quarreling. Give examples of each.  Role play examples of constructive and destructive quarreling in dating, in engagement, and in marriage. Which method of resolving conflict was most helpful?  Discuss the cumulative effects of quarreling.  Respond to the statement: "Discussion is an exchange of intelligence. Argument is an exchange of ignorance."  Discuss the statement: "Never let the sun go down on your anger."  Debate advantages and disadvantages of the family conference for settling differences.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Developing criteria for measuring marital success may help a couple avoid disillusionment.	Interpret criteria for measuring marital success (C)	List the criteria for measuring marital success such as: permanence of the marriage, happiness of the husband and wife, satisfaction with the marriage, sexual adjustment, marital adjustment, integration of the couple, consensus, and companionship. Determine how each criteria plays a role in a successful marriage.
The family may influence the community in which they live by accepting their community roles and responsibilities.	Summarize ways families contribute to the success of the community (C)	Coordinating Experience: Develop your criteria of a successful marriage. Save to share with your marriage partner.
		Define community.
		Discuss ways in which a family may contribute to the success of a community.
	Demonstrate the role of families in the success of the community (Ap)	Collect newspaper articles illustrating ways families have affected the community. Does society have something at stake in marriage? Give examples. What is the relationship of stable marriages to a strong community?
	Associate stability of family with stability of the community (An)	Write a paper on "A neighborhood or community is only as good as the families who live there."

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Use of community resources contribute to the successful functioning of the family.	Identify community resources available to the family (K)	List resources available in the community which could contribute to a successful marriage such as, church, ministers, and counselors.
	Illustrate the use of community and family resources (C)	Give examples of ways that families may make use of these resources.
		Interview senior citizens and young married couples to identify the role senior citizens play in helping stabilize young marriages.
	Demonstrate the importance of community resources (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: For community activity, prepare an article for school or community newspaper on resources available to the family.
Coping With Family Stresses and Crises
A crisis may be any thing which disrupts normal family functioning.	Define family crisis (K)	Define crisis using the dictionary. Relate the definition of crisis to its meaning in the family.
	Identify types of crises that affect the family (K)	Categorize crises under the following headings: dismemberment (divorce, death, dissection, marriage, children going away to college, war); addition (birth of child, grandparents coming to live, adoption,

Severe stresses may contribute to family disintegration or harmony depending on how they are handled.	Relate the steps in decision-making to handling a family crisis (Ap)	married children coming to live, grandchildren living in home); disorganization (role conflict, homosexuality, financial problems, adultery, alcoholism, drug addiction); demoralization (juvenile delinquency, loss of job, bankruptcy, criminal acts, adultery).
		Listen to a clergyman outline the use of steps in decision-making in coping with crisis such as, a death in the family.
		Listen to a lawyer explain the decisions which must be made regarding divorce and adoption.
		View a film or read a story on a family crisis. List the decisions the family had to make. Did you agree with their solutions? How would you have acted differently?
	Develop procedures in handling a family crisis (S)	Select a crisis. Explain how you would handle the crisis using the steps in the decision-making process.
		Participate in a field trip to a funeral home to gain an understanding of the factors involved in making funeral arrangements. How is death a family crisis? Which type of crisis is it?

		Write a paper titled "Benefits of Knowing How to Handle Crises."
		Coordinating Experience: For FHA, listen to a minister or marriage counselor explain the kind of family crises that encourage people to participate in counseling. Discuss the recommendations that he would make for preventing these crises. What procedures are recommended for handling the crises?
	Determine how family solidarity effects ability to cope with family crises (An)	Discuss the questions: When does family conflict become family crisis? Give examples. How does family solidarity affect the family's ability to cope with crises?
Divorce is a crisis which may necessitate outside aid for the family.	Analyze problems caused by divorce (An)	Discuss divorce as a family crisis. the Take a field trip to family court to observe procedures of divorce, and/or child custody cases or listen to a lawyer or judge explain family laws of the state such as, divorce, child custody, and property settlement. and other problems caused by the crisis of divorce.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Analyze the role of the individual in preventing ecological problems (An)	Identify things you have consciously or unconsciously done within the last week to contribute to pollution such as: littering, throwing away materials which could be recycled, etc. What should you have done in each instance?
Legislation is one aspect of solving ecological problems.	Determine how legislative action affects ecological problems (An)	Write for materials on recent legislation concerning ecology. What effect does legislation have on ecology such as: pollution control regulations, licensing for hunting and fishing, and control of food and drug additives.
	Appraise personal values and attitudes toward ecology (E)	Evaluate your attitudes and values toward ecology by discussing the statements, "I know over-population is a problem, but I still want four children" or "I know I should vote for the anti-pollution bill, but I don't have time."
		Determine your values and attitudes about ecological changes by completing a list of open end statements such as: I would like to have _____ number of children. After camping, I would _____ the garbage. I would care for my yard by _____.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
		Compare your answers to appraise general attitudes of the class toward responsibility concerning ecology.
	Compare over-population to ecological problems (E)	Use a mortality table from an insurance company as a basis for discussing ways the death rate affects the population growth.
	Interpret the effects of ecological problems on present and future life (C)	Illustrate the effects of ecological problems on present and future life. Summarize.
Social life enables the family to effectively relate to the community.	Name social activities for family enjoyment (K)	List social activities and club or organizations your family enjoys. Compile a class list.
	Give examples of ways families can relate to the community (C)	Identify ways the activities you listed allow your family to relate to the community. How may these activities improve family relations?
Effective use of leisure contributes to family harmony.	Distinguish between contemporary and past uses of family leisure time (An)	Compare and contrast contemporary recreational activities to activities of your grandparents' generation. What are the similarities and differences?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
The family has responsibilities for supporting healthful community recreational facilities.	Analyze the effect of family use of leisure on the community (An)	Discuss ways values, goals, and standards determine family's use of leisure. What effect will the family's use of leisure have on the community? How can family use of leisure contribute to family harmony as well as better community relations?
	Determine the role of the community in providing opportunities for family growth (An)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA, work with FFA to plan a family fun night.
		Contrast two community situations to illustrate differences in opportunities for growth and development of children from affluent families, poor families, and different races.
		Compile a list of characteristics describing an ideal community. How does this list compare to the community where you live? Who is responsible for providing the type of community desired? What is the family's role in meeting these responsibilities? What is the individual's role toward these responsibilities? How can individuals and families help in establishing, maintaining, and supporting community agencies?

	Explain the influence of technological change on the family (C)	Discuss the effect of the following current products of technological advancement on the family: industrialization and urbanization, mobility, labor saving devices, mass media, and medical achievements.
	Relate technological change to change in the family (Ap)	View a film on ways technological change affects the family. What determines the affect of change upon the individual or family? How does perception of change influence the family's ability to cope with change?
		Consider the advantages and disadvantages of changes in the family resulting from technological change.
The family and the environment are interdependent.	Analyze the influence of ecological change upon the family (An)	Divide into buzz groups and discuss the following questions: In what ways might ecological changes cause personal values to change? How can ecological problems cause changes in family life style

The family in contemporary society needs the ability to understand and assimilate change.	Distinguish the importance of the ability to adapt to change (An)	and size? How can increased education help families to adapt to ecological changes? Draw conclusions. Brainstorm to identify ways the family can cope with these stresses. Summarize findings. Read case studies illustrating situations in which a family can or cannot cope with the stress of change. Identify constructive ways to adapt to the change. Relate ability to cope with change to general ability to cope with ordinary family adjustment problems. Coordinating Experience: For FHA or community activity, present a comical skit or play illustrating ways to adapt to change.

CONCEPT: Family as Managers and Consumers--Elements of Management

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Evaluate the role of the elements of management in achieving family goals (E)

Values, Goals, and Standards
Values, goals, and standards motivate and give purpose and direction to management.	Define values, goals, and standards (K)	Arrange a bulletin board display entitled "I Wish These Were Mine." (Include 10-12 items such as: football, tape deck, mod clothes, cowboy boots, auto, make up mirror, senior ring, etc.) Choose the two items you want most and give reasons for your choices. Discuss reasons for differences in individual choices.
		Read information from various sources about values, goals, and standards. Develop definitions for class use. Use these definitions to categorize your reasons for choosing the two items from the board as reflections of values, goals, or standards.
	Distinguish among values, goals, and standards (An)	Watch a family television program to distinguish the apparent values, goals, and standards depicted.
Understanding values, goals, and standards contributes to satisfaction derived from management.	Predict the influence of values, goals, and standards upon choices made (Ap)	View transparencies illustrating each of the following: places to live, ways of spending money, personality types, and interests. Select the picture from each category that you prefer. What values do your choices reflect? What goals will they lead to? Are these consistent with your standards?

	Analyze the influence of values, goals, and standards upon decisions (An)	Write a paper identifying your values, goals, and standards in one area of your life such as, education. Analyze the affect on decisions made.
Resources
Creative and effective use of personal, family, and community resources contributes to successful home management.	Name personal, family, and community resources (K)	List and describe resources commonly available to individuals and families. Group them as human or material resources and as personal or public resources.
Resources are useful and limited.	Identify uses for specific resources (K)	Play a rhythm game in which the group leader names a resource. Group members respond by naming a use for this resource. The same use must not be given twice. Continue until someone cannot name a new use for the resource. The person who misses is the new leader. The teacher may be the judge to determine whether two suggestions are the same.
	Estimate limitations on various resources (C)	Brainstorm to list as many limitations as possible on a given resource. Consider both quantitative limits such as, 24 hours in a day being a limitation on time, and qualitative limits such as, managerial ability.

		Tell what resources would likely be most limited to people such as, a high school boy in a wheelchair, a working wife and mother, a retired couple, a one-parent family.
	List under each stage in the family life cycle the resources that would be most plentiful and those that would be most limited.
	Predict the availability of resources throughout the family life cycle (Ap)
	Solve problems involving resource use (Ap)	Draw from a box a problem requiring management. For example: Sue needs a new dress for a party on Saturday night. Identify possible combinations of resources which could solve the problem. Predict ways each solution could limit resources available for other purposes.
	Analyze the effects of a purchase on family resources (An)	Study the effects of a purchase such as, a sewing machine, on various family resources. Consider time, money, skills, and attitudes.

Effective use of resources contributes to efficient management.	Predict combination of resources suitable for reaching a given goal (Ap) Evaluate resource use in a given situation (E) Infer the effects of management upon achievement of success and happiness (An)	Think of two goals you hope to reach. Explain or show how you can use different forms or combinations of resources to reach these goals. Write a paper describing a situation in which you have used resources to good advantage. Describe a situation where you feel you did not make wise use of your resources. Justify your conclusions. Determine possible outcomes if one used his resources irresponsibly. Complete this statement: Responsible management of resources is important because _____.
Resources may be developed, interchanged, and increased.	Show how resources may be substituted for one another to reach the same goal (Ap)	List as many resources as you can which are available to your family. Star the ones used most frequently. Place an "X" beside those which are seldom or never used. Name situations in which the seldom or never used resources could be used instead of those frequently used.
	Demonstrate how resources are interdependent (Ap)	Work in small groups to develop a case study of the people described above. Include plans for using alternative resources and creating new ones. Show how the use of one resource influences the availability of another.

	List skills which may be developed to increase resources available (K)	Brainstorm to identify skills which may be developed or increased such as, refinishing furniture, knitting, sewing, and simple home repairs.
	Explain how skills may be exchanged to increase family resources (C)	Discuss ways families may increase their resources by exchanging skills. For example, Mrs. Jones makes curtains for Mrs. Smith, while Mrs. Smith's husband repairs Mrs. Jones's washing machine.
Needs and Wants
The ability to distinguish between needs and wants promotes responsible management.	Identify needs and wants (K)	Study references to clarify the difference between needs and wants. Discuss.  Watch a flannel board presentation to review Maslow's hierarchy of needs. Find realistic examples to illustrate the various needs.
When needs and wants exceed resources, priorities must be established so that the family's more important goals are reached.	Define priority (K)	Coordinating Experience: List your needs and wants under columns headed "Needs" and "Wants."  Define priority. How does establishing priorities relate to meeting family needs and wants?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Explain the establishment of priorities in each stage of the family life cycle (C)	View a picture of a family. Write a case study about the family in the picture. Include the following: stage in the family life cycle, needs and wants indicated by that stage, and priorities for needs and wants. Compare your list of needs and wants to those of classmates. How did they differ? Why? What needs and wants did you place in high priority? Why? How did these compare to the priorities of classmates?
	Illustrate the needs and wants related to the stages of the family life cycle (C)	Collect pictures of family needs and wants. Divide into groups according to the stages of the family life cycle. Develop a presentation of needs and wants for each stage. Justify your selections. Use the collected pictures to stimulate your thinking. Present your list of needs and wants to class. Compare with lists representing other stages in the family life cycle.
	Describe the role of values in establishing needs and wants (C)	Discuss these questions following each presentation: What values do these needs and wants reflect? What priority would families in this stage give to these needs and wants? Under what circumstances might values and priorities be altered?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Values, goals, and standards determine perception of needs and wants.	Identify factors which influence needs and wants (K)	Brainstorm to identify factors which influence a family's needs and wants such as, family size, composition, income, social status, stage in the life cycle, values, standards, and goals.
	Give examples of the influence of factors on needs and wants (C)	Interview two families with similar size, composition, income, social status, and at the same stage in the life cycle. Ask them to list their needs and wants for the coming year. Compare their lists. How are they similar? different? How do you account for the differences?

CONCEPT: Family as Managers and Consumers--Management Process

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Utilize the elements of management in personal and home living (S)

Decision-Making
Although decisions can be made in different ways, they are likely to be more satisfying when thinking and reasoning are used in making them.	List ways decisions can be made (K)	View a visual aid illustrating the following steps in the decision-making process: identify the problem, identify values and goals involved, consider resources, consider alternatives, consider possible outcomes, choose an alternative, put plan into action, and evaluate the results.
	Illustrate use of the decision-making process (C)	Read a case study of a family making a decision and point out the steps in the decision-making process illustrated in the case study.
		Coordinating Experience: Keep for a day a record of the decisions you made. Which were made using the steps in decision-making? Which were habitual?
	Demonstrate the use of the decision-making process in problem-solving (Ap)	Work in small groups to solve a given problem following the steps in the decision-making process.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Analyze the satisfaction derived from using the decision-making process (An)	Compare your solutions with those of other groups. Which solution seems most satisfactory? Justify your answer. Show how the solution for the same problem may be different under different circumstances.
Knowledge of factors affecting management contributes to more effective management.	Distinguish factors affecting management and decisions (An)	Brainstorm to list factors affecting management and decisions. Consider social, economic, physiological, and psychological factors. How does stage in the family life cycle affect management? What role do values, goals, and standards have in management? How do resources affect management? needs and wants? How do family communication and interaction affect the success of management?
Personal and family interaction influence decision-making.	Plan ways to involve family members in decision-making (S)	Divide into family groups and assume family roles to solve typical family problems. Present one or two of the solutions to class. How could brainstorming result in more effective family communications? What other methods could improve family communication in decision-making?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Although group decisions are not necessarily better than the strongest person in the group could make alone, group decisions may promote better relationships among persons concerned with the decision.	Evaluate the influence of family interaction on decision-making (E)	Coordinating Experience: Work with your family to experiment with various techniques of communication. Which one worked best for your family? Why? Do you feel that your family has a better understanding of the importance of good communication than before your experiments?
	Explain processes in group decisions (C)	Brainstorm to identify ways individuals with different backgrounds and opinions such as, a family group, can work together on important decisions.
	Evaluate effects of group decisions (E)	Show how effective decision-making may foster more satisfying relationships among group members and of group members with outsiders.
		Coordinating Experience: Work with your family to make an important decision using the family council. Report the results of your decision. Were family members satisfied with the decision? Why or why not? Did use of the family council improve family communication?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Effective use of the management process may enable the individual and family to reach desired goals, provided resources are adequate.	Use management process to achieve goals (Ap)	Read a case study of a family that reveals several goals desired by individual family members. As a class, list goals revealed in the case study. What individual values do these goals reveal? What family values are apparent? What conflicts are there between individual and family values? Considering the values revealed, arrange the goals according to the priority you think this family would give them. (Be objective.) What circumstances may cause this family to change the priority given to each goal? If certain goals could not be reached, what satisfactory substitutions could be made? How can they make these decisions?
Within families, as in other groups, cooperation is essential for successful management.	Determine ways goals of family members may be adjusted to minimize conflicts (An)	Discuss the following statement: Often a group member will find it desirable to adjust his goals to meet the needs of the group. Under what conditions may this be true? How may it be done? What may be some ways conflicts or disagreements among group members can be resolved? How may the role of parents differ from those of other members of the family?
	Demonstrate procedures in reaching goals (Ap)	Work in small groups to select one of this family's goals. Apply the management process to achievement of this goal. Select an individual goal of one of the family members and apply the management process to the achievement of this goal.

	Summarize factors influencing management (S)	Write a paper summarizing the factors influencing management.
	Evaluate effectiveness of family communication and interaction (E)	Coordinating Experience: Study resources on communication and interaction. Observe communication and interaction among family members in making a decision affecting the whole family. Evaluate in light of your study.
Goals should be changed if they are unrealistic or outmoded.	Explain reasons goals cannot always be reached (C)	Debate the following issue: "One's goals can always be reached if one tries hard enough to attain them." Under what conditions may it be difficult, if not impossible, to reach one's goals? How can one save face with himself when a goal cannot be reached? Under what conditions may one goal be substituted for another? Give examples.
One decision affects another.	Distinguish the effect of one decision on another (S)	Work in groups to describe an individual or family situation. List resources available, needs, wants, and goals. Choose one need or want to satisfy. What effect does the decision to satisfy this need or want have on resources available for satisfying other needs or wants? For example, if family members choose to buy

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
A major decision causes a chain of reactions requiring further decisions.	Give examples of how one decision requires additional decisions (C)	a new television, they may not have money to buy a new chair, a washing machine or some other item. In addition, they may not be able to go to the movies or other entertainments. The family may have to give up other things which could have been bought with that money. However, if all members of the family want the new television, they do not object to giving up other things in order to purchase what they want.
Once a decision is made, many smaller decisions must be made.	Identify decisions which may result from a major decision (K)	Develop a bulletin board to illustrate the dependency of one decision on another. The reaction of a row of dominoes if one domino is knocked over (each domino representing a decision resulting from the one knocked over) or a chain showing one decision following another as links of the chain might be used as an illustration.
		Describe decisions which may result from a decision such as, the decision of the homemaker to find a part-time job.
		Brainstorm to identify decisions which might result from a major family decision such as, moving to another city, wife getting a job, or buying a new car.

Decision Control
Control of human and non-human resources is necessary to implement a decision.	Define control as it relates to management (K)  Explain importance of control in management (C)	Define control. Relate control to putting plans into action.  List two situations in which plans were not controlled. What were the consequences? For example, if the oven temperature is not set properly, what would happen to one's plan to serve cake to guests tonight?
		Discuss the following questions: Why is it important to exercise control over one's plans as they are put into action? What are the purposes of control? What are the advantages of control?
	Illustrate how the manager controls human resources in achieving a specific goal (C)	Work in groups to identify controls the manager has over human resources such as, abilities and skills, attitudes, knowledge, energy, as he/she carries out decisions?
		Work in groups to identify controls over human resources which might be involved in situations such as, baby-sitting, working on a decoration committee, refinishing furniture, making the honor roll.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Determine why controlling is useful in working with others (An)	Study resources to identify ways the manager can control her plan when working with others. For example, if you are working with other family members in the kitchen, what controls can you use to see that the meal is prepared as planned?
	Illustrate controls the manager has over material resources (C)	Brainstorm to identify controls the manager has over material resources such as, material goods, money, and community facilities.
		List checking devices homemakers use every day such as, the clock, temperature control, thermometer, speed indicator, etc.
	Give examples of how material resources can be controlled to achieve specific goals (C)	Identify controls the family may use over material resources in situations such as, buying a new dress, using credit, finding inexpensive recreation, borrowing a book from the library.
		Coordinating Experience: Identify controls you exercised in an activity such as, making a dress, working on an FHA committee, preparing a simple meal, spending your allowance.

Recognition of managerial behavior and factors affecting family management contributes to the ability to use the management process.	Recognize management problems (K)	Interview a number of persons such as: homemaker-wage earner, full-time homemaker, husband of homemaker, bachelor, elderly adult, beginning homemaker, teen-ager, etc., to ascertain what they consider to be their managerial successes and difficulties.
	Explain factors that influence both personal and home management (C)	Discuss the following questions: What factors influenced the personal and home management of each of the persons you interviewed? What did they consider possible reasons for their strengths and weaknesses?
Decision Evaluation
Evaluation involves determining the degree to which goals were reached and the effectiveness of procedures used in reaching them.	Describe the role of evaluation in management (C)	Discuss the following questions: What does it mean to evaluate a decision which has been made and carried out? What is involved in evaluation? Why is evaluation a desirable part of management?
	Identify procedures for determining whether goals have been reached (K)	Brainstorm to identify questions one might ask to determine whether he has reached his goals.
	Use evaluation to determine whether goals were reached in a given situation (Ap)	Read a case study involving a decision which was made and carried out. Were goals reached? To what extent? Why? What changes would you have made in the decision or in the way it was carried out?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
		Coordinating Experience: Evaluate a decision you have made and carried out recently. To what extent did you reach your goal? What changes might have been made in the original decision or in the way it was carried out? Were your goals reasonable? Discuss means the family might use to determine whether they have employed various resources to the best advantage.
	Identify procedures for determining whether resources have been used effectively (K) Use evaluation procedures to determine whether resources were used effectively in a given situation (Ap) Determine ways that evaluation may be used to improve future decisions (An)	Read a case situation and determine ways resources might have been used to better advantage. Discuss ways evaluation can be used to improve future decisions in terms of goals and in terms of resource use. Evaluate decisions made for specific situations in light of resources used and goals achieved.
	Explain management terminology (C)	Work in small groups to develop a cross-word puzzle of management terms. Exchange puzzles among groups and complete.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding the factors affecting family management contributes to more efficient managerial behavior.	Analyze management problems (An)	Select two or three management difficulties and use the management process to propose alternative solutions to each problem. In each situation, point out which step in the management process is the strongest and which is the weakest. What values, goals, standards, and resources would be reflected in each alternative? How did social, economic, physical and psychological factors affect the alternative selected? How did the stage in the family life cycle affect the alternative selected?
Successful management in the home depends on cooperation among family members.	Select criteria for evaluating home management decisions (Ap)	Identify criteria which you would use in measuring the success of home management in achieving personal and family goals.
Criteria for effective management aids both in managing and in evaluating the quality of management.	Determine how management can improve relationships in the family (An)	Listen to a family or marriage counselor discuss causes of conflicts among family members and methods of resolving conflicts and promoting cooperation among family members. How can management help foster satisfying human relationships? What managerial problems frequently cause conflict among family members?
	Develop criteria for evaluating effectiveness of management (S)	Work in groups to develop criteria for effective management. What techniques aid in planning? Consider fitting the individual or group, flexibility, realism in success

Using Time and Energy

The management of the inter-related resources of time and energy is known as work simplification.

Identify principles for using time and energy (K)

Study references to identify principles for using time and energy involving changes in hand and body motions, in work and storage space and equipment, or in the product.

Give examples of techniques for using time and energy (C)

Demonstrate ways to apply techniques for using time and energy (Ap)

Work in groups to perform tasks such as, food preparation, dishwashing, laundering, bedmaking, or cleaning. Perform the task, then determine ways to simplify it. Perform the task again and let the class evaluate to determine whether improvement was made.

Coordinating Experience: Apply work simplification techniques to a task for which you are responsible. Did you save any time? energy? Was the quality of the task improved? Would you use these techniques again? Would you consider using these techniques for saving time and energy for other tasks?

Relationship of Time, Energy, and Money
Effective time management contributes to the achievement of personal and family goals.	Identify reasons for time management (K)	Keep a record of how you spend your time for one week. Study your record and list your apparent goals. Are these the same goals you thought you were striving for? Do you feel that you could have made better use of your time in order to reach goals which are important to you?
Demands on time vary with the stage in the family life cycle.	Explain influence of family life cycle on time management (C)	Develop a questionnaire for interviewing men and women representing different stages in the family life cycle to identify demands on time during the different stages. Include such questions as the following: What are the most time-consuming aspects of living for you? How are home-making responsibilities divided among members of your family? Which home tasks do you like best? least? why? Which tasks are most fatiguing? In what outside activities do you participate regularly? How much time do you spend in them?
	Identify factors affecting time management (K)	Interview your father or mother to learn how they spend their time for one weekday. Identify their place of residence and employment status. Compare the amount of time spent for various purposes. Discuss and draw conclusions.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Summarize information on making time plans (C)	Study references on making time plans. Summarize information on peak loads, sequence of activities, time required for different activities, time for emergencies, and work curves.
	Identify techniques in effective time management (K)	Interview a student who appears to manage his time effectively. What techniques does he use? How does he divide his time among study, school activities, and social and personal life?
A balanced use of time promotes the individual's physical and mental well-being.	Explain the importance of balancing time expenditures (C)	Explain reasons for balancing time spent for work, rest, and leisure.
	Analyze time plan (An)	Coordinating Experience: Make a time plan for three days using your values, goals, needs, and wants as guides. Beside each activity record whether you accomplished, partially accomplished, or did not accomplish each task. If you did not accomplish a task, record how you used that time. How well did you estimate your time? Did you allow too much? too little? on what job? Did you stick to your plans most of the time? Some of the time? little of the time? Why? If you

Effective energy management contributes to achievement of personal and family goals.	Identify factors that contribute to energy (K)	allowed too little time for a task, how much more time was needed? Did you re-schedule tasks not accomplished? How could time spent on some tasks be shortened? What have you learned from this experience? List factors which contribute to our energy such as: good health, proper diet, and rest; work habits; environmental conditions (temperature and humidity, noise, beauty and orderliness, work area, lighting); human relationships; and dress.
	Identify energy demands on the homemaker (K)	Describe demands on the energy of a homemaker at different stages in the family life cycle. Brainstorm to identify activities frequently performed in the home. Classify each activity as light, moderate, or heavy in its demands on energy.
	Give examples of efficient body movements (C)	Demonstrate to the class your findings regarding alignment of body parts, effective use of muscles, rhythm, center of gravity, and momentum.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding factors contributing to fatigue helps the homemaker make better use of her energy.	Identify types of fatigue (K)	Name an activity you can pursue for a long time and not feel tired. How do you account for this lack of fatigue?
	Explain types of fatigue (C)	Explain the difference between physical and psychological fatigue. How can each type of fatigue be avoided? How may one's attitudes toward his work produce fatigue? What kind of fatigue?
	Illustrate types of fatigue (C)	Give an example of fatigue you have experienced. What caused your fatigue? Could you have prevented it? How?

CONCEPT: Family as Managers and Consumers--Consumer Education

Income
Family income may be acquired from numerous sources.	Identify sources of income (K)	Interview a local or nearby employment agency official or a banker to learn how families in the community earn their incomes.
Types of family income include money income, real income, and psychic income.	Describe types of income (C)	Define and give examples of the types of income (money, real, and psychic). Explain how understanding the types of income can help the family reach more of their goals.
The stage in the family life cycle is one factor that influences the amount of family income as well as the demands on the income.	Predict the influence of the family life cycle on family income (Ap)	Divide into groups representing the stages in the family life cycle and write case studies describing the source, type and relative amount of income in each stage. Point out factors that influence the allocation of family income among needs and wants. Present to class and discuss how families can adjust to these differences in income.
Effective family communication and cooperation contributes to satisfactory financial planning.	Identify the role of communication in family financial planning (K)	Read case situations to identify possible results when a family fails to communicate or to cooperate in planning its spending. How may members of a family work together to plan their spending? What effect does

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Cooperation among family members in developing and using a spending plan will contribute to the success of the plan and to family harmony.	Summarize possible effects on family relationships of using a spending plan (C)	lack of communication have on family relationships? on money use? Discuss the possible effects using a spending plan may have on family relationships. Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
A workable spending plan promotes maximum utilization of family income in relation to standard, level, and cost of living.	Explain the terms standard, level, and cost of living (C)	Work in groups to develop visuals to define standard, level, and cost of living. Share your definitions with class. Discuss the effects of each on a family's way of living or life style.
Successful spending plans reflect a realistic consideration of income and expenses.	Identify realistic plans for using money (K)	Study a case situation of a family and its plans for using its money. Discuss questions such as: What values and goals are reflected? What needs and wants are revealed? What was their income? What were their fixed expenses? their flexible expenses? Do these seem reasonable for this income and family? Why or why not? What standard of living or life style is indicated? What goals appear to have the highest priorities? What evidence is there of family communication and cooperation in planning? In what way is a need for self-discipline indicated? How may following this plan affect family relationships? Were allowances used for children and adults? What are some pros and cons on the use of allowances?
An effective spending plan establishes priorities which reflect the goals of the individual and the family.	Recognize the role of establishing priorities in financial planning (K)	Role play a family council meeting at which the family must establish priorities among several of its needs and wants.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding the procedures involved in making a spending plan facilitates effective money management.	Identify the basic elements of a spending plan (K)	Collect examples of spending plans or budgets from books and magazines and bring to class. Study the examples to identify the basic elements of a spending plan.
	Develop guidelines for developing spending plans for a family (S)	Develop guidelines and practical procedures for making a spending plan with the viewpoint that these plans may vary some with different situations for the same family and for different families.
	Develop a spending plan (S)	Coordinating Experience: Make a spending plan for yourself or work with your family to plan their spending. Follow the plan for one month. Report on the success of the plan.
	Solve problems in using a spending plan (Ap)	Read a case study of a family involved in planning, controlling, and evaluating their spending during unexpected occurrences such as: illness, unexpected business opportunity, pregnancy, need to replace a major appliance, equipment repair, or income increase or decrease. Use the "in-basket" technique to work through these problems. Solve one problem and hand it in before reading the next one. Work at your own speed within the time allotted for completion of the series of problems.

Some common characteristics identify effective spending plans although details vary with individuals and situations.	Describe an effective spending plan (C)	Brainstorm to determine questions which will aid in evaluating your plans. Consider such things as: unplanned purchases and expenses, goals not reached, underestimating or overestimating expenses, record-keeping, changes in needs, and realism and flexibility of plan.
Family Records
Understanding and keeping essential family records contributes to efficient financial management.	Identify financial records essential for a family (K)	Determine the kind of financial records essential for practical family use.
	Give examples of financial records (C)	Examine a variety of family financial records. Select forms most practical for family use.
		Coordinating Experience: Organize a reference booklet of financial record forms that will be useful to you now and in the future.
An efficient business center makes financial management easier and contributes to responsible management.	Explain reasons for keeping expenditure records (C)	Work in small groups to develop a skit explaining the reasons for keeping adequate records such as: knowing whether spending follows plan, preparing accurate tax reports, evaluating money use, and guiding future financial management. Consider the consequences of misplacing or destroying important family records.

	Demonstrate ways to set up a family business center (Ap)	Collect ideas for keeping records and organizing family business centers. Use books, magazines, and interviews with older family members to get ideas. Point out advantages and disadvantages of each of the methods suggested. How safe is each method? How helpful?
		Coordinating Experience: Work with your parents to plan and/or organize a family business center.
For family security, store all permanent family and financial records in a safe place.	Identify ways to keep valuables safe (K)	Write a paragraph supporting the following statement: "Keeping family financial records contributes to family security."
		Visit your local bank to learn where to keep family valuables such as: money, abstracts and deeds, wills, family records, inventory, income tax records, mortgages, stocks, and bonds.
Savings
Savings involves reserving a part of present family income for future use.	Identify reasons for saving (K)	Discuss reasons families save. Why do some families not reach their savings goals? Why do some families feel they cannot save?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Types of saving include both short-term and long-term savings.	Explain reasons for savings (C) Identify types of saving (K)	Make a visual depicting reasons families save. Share with class. Listen to a symposium composed of representatives from a bank, a credit union, and a savings and loan association explain their savings programs. Discuss advantages and disadvantages of each program. Study United States Government savings bonds, Series E and H as an effective means for saving and share with class.
The type of savings plan an individual or family selects is influenced by its values and goals, as well as its income and the demands on its income.	Explain ways of selecting a savings plan (C)	Develop criteria for selecting a savings plan. Consider the following questions: How safe will my money be? Can I get my money quickly and easily when I need it? How much interest will my savings earn? What situations might arise that would require the exercise of self-discipline if a family is to reach its savings goals? Will it be practical to subtract the money to be saved from the income as a fixed expense before beginning to spend income?
Credit	Identify types and sources of credit (K)	View filmstrip or read references to identify types and sources of credit. Describe and compare advantages and disadvantages of each.
The three main types of credit (sales, cash, and service) can be obtained from various sources at various costs, and under different contract conditions.

The ability to obtain credit reflects a person's capacity to repay, his collateral, and his character.	Identify factors that influence credit rating (K)	Listen to a symposium of resource persons from a credit union, small loan company, bank, credit bureau, and retail merchant. Clarify factors that influence credit rating and ways to protect your credit rating.
Understanding the effects of using credit in relation to the overall financial plan contributes to responsible managerial behavior.	Identify decisions a family must make regarding use of credit (K)  Explain how a family may decide on the use of credit (C)	Discuss the effects of using credit in relation to overall financial plans in family money management. How can a family determine its credit capacity?
	Solve case situations to determine if credit should be used (Ap)	Develop a list of questions an individual or family may ask before deciding to use credit.  Study case situations and decide if credit should be used in each case. What method of financing would you choose?
		Describe circumstances that would influence a family to use a method of financing different from the one you chose or that would influence them to postpone their purchase and not use credit at all.
Each person or family must decide, on the basis of its own situation, what to do when it cannot pay its debts when due.	Identify possible ways of handling excessive debts (K)	Discuss factors which may cause an individual or family to assume more credit than can be managed. Present alternatives a family might choose when it has

Consumer Buying
A large number and variety of reliable informational materials are available at little or no cost to consumers.	Give examples of sources of information on buying (C)	Investigate several different sources of information and determine their reliability. Compile a reference list for your own use as a consumer. Develop a file of information on buying for your future use.
Many labels provide useful information for intelligent choices in buying.	List information on Labels (K) Explain usefulness of Labels (C) Relate the importance of guarantees and warranties to the consumer (Ap)	Collect a number of labels from different kinds of consumer goods. List information found on each. Explain how information found on labels is helpful as a buying aid to the consumer. Study several different guarantees or warranties and predict meaning for the consumer.

	Analyze the protection offered by guarantees and warranties (An)	Analyze the guarantees for two similar products. Determine which guarantee offers more protection for the consumer.
	Explain how labels and advertising aid the consumer (C)	Explain how label information added to advertising can provide consumers with facts useful in comparing products and deciding which to select.
Utilization of consumer information from various sources facilitates efficient managerial behavior.	Predict the usefulness and reliability of consumer information sources (Ap)	Investigate other sources of information such as: U.S. grades and inspection stamps, magazines and books, government bulletins, friends, neighbors, and relatives. Predict their usefulness and reliability to the consumer. What kind of information may be obtained from each source?
Determination of the quality of a product and its relation to intended use facilitates efficient consumer buying.	Determine the relationship of price to quality (An)	Analyze the following statements: "The highest priced item is the best buy." "The lowest priced item is the best buy." In what situations is each true? neither true? Relate quality in relation to intended use to the price of the item selected.
Family goal achievement is facilitated by use of efficient purchase plans.	Identify considerations for making effective purchase plans (K)	Discuss advantages and disadvantages of buying brand name products.  Choose a specific item and identify information which needs to be included in preliminary buying plans. Include such

Comparative shopping contributes to greater satisfaction with buying decisions.	Define comparative shopping (K)  Explain how comparative shopping aids the consumer (C)  Demonstrate ability to shop comparatively (Ap)	information as: item needed, price range in relation to budget, quality in relation to intended use, durability needed, number, size, style, workmanship, special features or requirements, convenience, time, energy, space available or required, care needed, and guarantee or warranty.  Discuss the role of the shopping list in making purchase plans. How can it aid the consumer when he shops?  Define comparative shopping. What does it involve?  Explain how comparative shopping can aid the consumer in getting the best buy for his money? When may comparative shopping be unwise?  Choose an item that could be purchased from several different sources. Visit a variety of shopping facilities such as: department store, variety store, specialty shop, discount store, mail-order house, and a cooperative. In each facility compare quality of item (design, materials, workmanship), services offered, and prices available. Discuss findings of each group. What conclusions may you draw about the

Observing shopping ethics promotes greater cooperation and better relationships between consumers and retailers.	Identify ethical and unethical shopping practices (K)	quality of an item needed for a specific use? Under what circumstances would each quality be an appropriate selection? How may the type of shopping facility influence the cost of an item? Does a greater number of services offered by the retailer increase the cost of an item? Coordinating Experience: Select an item which you plan to purchase in the near future. Shop comparatively for this item. Record your findings and defend the decision you made.
In most communities a number of different types of retailers serve the consumer.	Explain how to select ethical retailers (C)	Identify ethical and unethical shopping practices. Discuss ways these practices may affect prices. Include practices such as: raising cost to business through shoplifting, damaging merchandise and facilities, abusing service (not paying bills on time, and using unnecessary approval service, etc.) switching price tags, and leaving what cannot be used. Check telephone directory for different places and types of retail outlets available in your community. Make a chart listing the different types of retailers, their dominant characteristics, and the kinds, qualities, and price ranges of their products.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Impulse buying may delay achievement of goals.	Prepare guidelines for selecting retailers (Ap)	Develop guidelines that would be useful in selecting the retailer who will most likely meet your needs for different goods and services. Include methods of identifying ethical retailers.
	Define a bargain (K)	Discuss: "What is a bargain?" Are all bargain purchases really bargains? Why? Study resources to learn the types of sales. Which are likely to offer real bargains?
	Define impulse buying (K)	Discuss questions such as: What is impulse buying? What effect does it have on a family's spending? If family members frequently engage in impulse buying, what effect may this have on reaching family goals? Give examples of the kinds of goods usually purchased on impulse and those usually planned in advance.
	Give examples of impulse buying (C)	Give examples of items you have purchased with which you were not pleased. What accounted for your dissatisfaction? How did you shop for this item? Was the item bought on impulse. Was the purchase of the item well planned and the quality of the product inferior? Is it always possible to avoid dissatisfaction with purchases?

Consumer Citizenship
Knowledge of consumer organizations and their services contributes to effective decision-making.	Identify consumer services regulated by government agencies (K)	Work in groups to list government agencies which provide consumer protection services. Identify the services provided, location, address, and publications of each. Share your information with the class.
	Explain how a government agency protects the consumer (C)	Summarize procedures of each government consumer protection agency.
	Explain consumer laws (C)	Study consumer laws such as, the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act of the Consumer Credit Cost Disclosure Bill. Study the strengths and weaknesses of the act or bill. Discuss its effects on the consumer and on the goods and services available to him.
	Identify fraudulent, deceptive, or quack practices (K)	View visuals depicting examples of fraudulent, deceptive, or quack practices.
	Identify action the consumer should take in cases of fraud, deception, or quackery (K)	Study references to identify actions the consumer can take before and after he is "gyped." Discuss.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Rights of consumers include the right to be informed, to choose, to safety, and to be heard.	Identify consumer rights (K)	View a visual depicting the basic consumer rights: the right to be informed, the right to safety, the right to choose, and the right to be heard.
	Give examples of consumer rights (C)	Give examples of each of the four basic consumer rights.
		Coordinating Experience: Develop a plan for being an informed consumer. Plan to keep up with information from consumer protection agencies, on new products, on buying guides, etc. Report results to class.
	Explain the effects of consumer practices on prices (C)	Discuss some ethical responsibilities of the consumer. What effects do shoplifting, unnecessary return of goods due to careless buying, and refunds or exchanges of products abused by the consumer have on business?
	List sources of consumer information (K)	Study resources to identify sources of consumer information. Include various government agencies, private groups, advertising, salesman, friends, labels, guarantees, warranties, seals of approval, trademarks, government inspection, periodicals, bulletins, and instruction booklets. How useful is the information derived from each source?

CONCEPT: Children in the Family--Basic Considerations

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Develop guides for preparing for parenthood (S)

Role of Planning
Awareness of the responsibilities of parenthood promotes a realistic view of marriage and family life.	Identify characteristics necessary for successful parenthood (K)	Take a pretest to measure your attitudes toward young children. The test should include the following concepts: prenatal care, emotional adjustment, financial adjustment, child development principles, influences on child's development, child's needs, child's role in the family, guidance and discipline, and children's effect on family routines.
	Explain preparations necessary for successful parenthood (C)	Complete one of the following statements: "I want children because _____." "I do not want children because _____."  Explore resources to gain an understanding of the preparation necessary for successful parenthood.
	Prepare a check list for parenthood readiness (Ap)	Prepare a check list to determine readiness for parenthood. The list may include: physical and mental health of parents, emotional maturity of parents, basic values and attitudes toward children, housing, family income, relationship of family members, etc.

	Determine how children's play contributes to learning of parental roles (An)	React to the following statements: Girls grow up prepared for motherhood. Boys grow up unprepared for fatherhood.  Discuss the following questions: What is the role of play in preparing children for roles of parenthood? Are the roles realistic?
Adolescent experiences contribute to preparation for parenthood.	Analyze experiences in adolescent years in the preparation for parenthood (An)	Recall experiences with younger children which help prepare one for parenthood. Analyze these experiences: babysitting, vacation bible school, leading youth groups.
	Write hints for future parents (S)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA or community activity, construct a pamphlet of helpful hints for future parents.
Awareness of factors involved in family planning contributes to rational decisions.	Explain the role of planning in successful parenthood (C)	Discuss the role of planned parenthood. Consider emotional, physical, and religious implications involved in this family decision. Consider family size in relation to financial, emotional, and ecological factors.

Prenatal Care
Early recognition of pregnancy contributes to the well-being of both the mother and the baby.	Identify symptoms of pregnancy (K)  Explain the importance of pre-natal care (C)	Study resources to identify symptoms of pregnancy. How is pregnancy diagnosed?  Prepare a bulletin board illustrating the importance of pre-natal care, including medical examination, diet, activity, clothing, and refraining from self-medication.
		Invite the instructor of a class for expectant parents to explain the purposes for these classes and the topics covered.
	Explain the importance of good health habits to family well-being (C)	Divide into buzz groups and discuss the relationship of good health habits of parents to the physical well-being of children.
		Research possible causes of birth defects.
	Identify the possible effect of stimulants or depressants on unborn children (K)	Identify effects parents' health habits could have on the unborn child. What is the effect on the unborn child of drugs? of alcohol? of smoking?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Knowing what to expect contributes to successful adjustment to pregnancy.	Recognize physical changes which occur during pregnancy (K)	Invite a doctor or nurse to discuss physical changes which occur in the mother during pregnancy.
	Identify psychological aspects of pregnancy (K)	Study references to determine psychological aspects of pregnancy. What factors may affect the mother's attitudes toward pregnancy? toward her unborn child? How may the father support his wife during her pregnancy? How may the expectant father be affected by his wife's pregnancy?
	Explain what is involved in prenatal care (C)	Interview a doctor to learn what is involved in prenatal care. What is involved in physical examinations during pregnancy? What recommendations does he have regarding diet and activities? How much weight does he feel is a reasonable amount to gain during pregnancy?
	State the effects of pregnancy on the mother's activities (K)	Listen to a panel of young mothers discuss the effects of pregnancy on their activities.
	Identify clothing needs during pregnancy (K)	Study resources to determine clothing needs during pregnancy.  Visit a store which sells maternity clothes to study alternatives available.

Adjustments Necessary
Parenthood necessitates physical, emotional, and financial adjustments.	Identify emotional adjustments necessary for successful parenthood (K)	Interview young parents to discover emotional adjustments which have to be made before and after the birth of the baby. Summarize findings.
	Explain the emotional adjustments necessary for successful parenthood (C)	Study resources to explain the emotional adjustments which occur before and after the birth of the baby. Present findings to class.
	Give examples of successful adjustments to parenthood (Ap)	Role play situations of families adjusting to a new baby. Have class suggest satisfactory solutions to each adjustment problem.
	Analyze emotional adjustments to parenthood in given situations (Ar.)	Coordinating Experience: Read books relating young couples' preparation for parenthood. Prepare a written report on the couples' problems in emotional adjustment to parenthood.
Financial Considerations
Each new child necessitates re-evaluation and reallocation of family finances.	Explain financial considerations necessitated by parenthood (C)	Compile a list of financial decisions and plans which expectant parents must make, such as: layette, room, medical costs, household help, and employment of mother.

		Listen to a nurse or doctor discuss maternity care. Discuss the different methods of payment for maternity care.
	Predict spending plans necessitated by parenthood (Ap)	Work in groups to make a spending plan for the coming year for a young couple expecting their first child based on a monthly income of $400. Analyze each group's plan.
	Organize a financial plan for a family approaching parenthood (S)	Use case studies to plan a budget for approaching parenthood costs. Keep in mind the particular family's values, goals, and standards when planning. What resources will the couple utilize?
One-Parent Families
The one-parent family must make special adjustments in family and community life.	Describe one-parent families (C)	Identify the types of one-parent families such as: widowed parent, divorced parent, or single parent.
		List possible advantages and disadvantages of each type of one-parent family.
	Interpret adjustment problems of one-parent families (C)	Listen to a panel consisting of a social worker from an adoption agency, marriage counselor, and minister discuss the one-parent family. Participate in a question

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Adoption provides opportunities for homeless children to form meaningful family relationships.	Describe reasons for adoption (C)	and answer session considering the following questions: What problems are encountered when one parent or a single person tries to raise children? Is it possible that one parent could create a more stable atmosphere than two parents in a home characterized by conflicts? What is society's view of the unwed parent? Summarize findings.
Adoption provides opportunities for homeless children to form meaningful family relationships.	Describe reasons for adoption (C)	List on chalkboard the motives for adoption such as: ecological responsibility, humanitarian responsibility, companionship for a couples' own child or children, or childless family as a result of sterility. Discuss these motives in relation to successful parenthood.
	Describe legal implications of adoption (C)	Write to the Department of Public Welfare in your state for materials on adoption.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding legal procedures involved facilitates adoption proceedings.	Explain legal procedures for adoption (C)	Research materials for legal procedures and requirements for parents who wish to adopt children. Report findings to the class.
	Summarize problems and satisfactions in adoption (C)	Take a field trip to a children's home where children are available for adoption. Listen to the director explain adoption procedures. Summarize findings.
	Explain reasons single parents adopt children (C)	Listen to carefully selected adoptive parents discuss the joys and adjustments of adopting a child. Discuss when, what, and why the child should be told about his being adopted.

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Point out factors influencing the development of infants and young children (An)

Prenatal Development
Development which occurs before birth provides the foundation for growth and development of the child throughout life.	State when conception occurs (K)	View a film or filmstrip to gain an understanding of how conception occurs.
	Explain factors determined at conception (C)	Study references to determine what factors are determined at conception, including hereditary endowment, sex, and whether a single or multiple birth will result. Which parent determines the child's sex?
	List development which occurs during each prenatal period (K)	Study references to identify periods of prenatal development (ovum, embryo, fetus). List development which occurs in each period. How long does each period last?
	Summarize development which occurs in each prenatal period (C)	Develop a visual explaining the three periods of prenatal development.
	Explain factors which influence prenatal development (C)	Work in groups to study factors which influence prenatal development such as, maternal nutrition, maternal health, alcohol, tobacco, maternal age, maternal-emotions.

	Recognize the birth process (K)	View a film or filmstrip on the birth process.
Principles of Development
Each person follows a predictable pattern of development in his own way and at his own rate.	Identify stages in child development (K)	Research the stages of child development and report findings to class.  Identify the basic needs of infants and young children. How do needs change? What responsibilities do parents have in meeting these needs?
		Plan a bulletin board illustrating the basic needs of infants and young children titled, "See How They Grow."
Development results from both maturation and learning.	Define maturation and learning (K)	Read references to find definitions of maturation and learning.
	Explain the difference between maturation and learning (C)	Write a paragraph explaining the difference between maturation and learning.
Development of the child occurs as a progressive series of orderly, coherent changes leading toward maturity.	Identify characteristics of predictable development patterns (K)	View a transparency identifying the following characteristics of predictable development: Development is similar for all. Development proceeds from general to specific. Development is continuous. Development proceeds at different rates. There is correlation in development.

	Give examples of characteristics of predictable development patterns (C)	Share examples of personal observations of predictable development patterns.
	Explain the influence of individuality on development patterns (C)	Explain why you cannot expect the same behavior from all children at the same age.
	Prepare a presentation of the developmental stages (Ap)	Work in four groups to prepare a presentation of the developmental stages of children (physical, mental, social, emotional).
Influences on Development
Heredity provides the potential one has for the development of a particular trait.	Explain the principles of heredity (C)	Invite your biology teacher or school nurse to explain the principles of heredity.
Environment includes the factors that influence the life of the individual.	Explain the effects of environment upon human development (C)	Coordinating Experience: Read a novel, short story, or current magazine article illustrating the effects of the environment

Heredity and environment are complementary factors affecting human development.	Relate the influence of heredity and environment upon human development (Ap)	on its inhabitants. Summarize in your own words the effects of environment on human development.  Draw conclusions on how your heredity and environment have influenced your development.
	Tell the influence of family and peers on teenage development (S)	Consider the following question: Are you more influenced by your family or peers? Write a paragraph summarizing and justifying your position.
Mass media may have either positive or negative effects on the child.	Determine the influence of social institutions and mass media upon the development of young people (An)	Discuss how social institutions and mass media influence the development of young people.  Collect magazine or newspaper articles that illustrate how social institutions attempt to influence young people.
	Analyze influence of children's TV programs upon their development (An)	Coordinating Experience: For home experience, view children's TV programs to identify possible influences upon a young child's development. Share with class.
Family and peers have the greatest influence on the development of the child.	Point out the influence of family and peers on human development (An)	Read case studies to point out the influence of family and peers upon human development.

Play and Play Equipment
Play and play equipment influence the growth and the development of children.	Identify the values of play (K)	Write your reaction to the following statement: "Play is a child's work."  Study resources to answer the following question: What do children learn from their play?
Play helps the child learn about his world.	Give examples of the values of play (C)  Summarize the value of children's play (C)	Give examples of how play contributes to each of the values or learnings listed.  Reread your original reaction to the statement: "Play is a child's work." Do you now have a better understanding of the value of children's play? Rewrite your original reaction summarizing your present understanding of the value of child's play.
Play varies with each age level according to the child's development and readiness.	Identify characteristics of children's play (K)	View a transparency illustrating the following characteristics of children's play: Play follows a pattern of development. Play is influenced by tradition. Play activities decrease in number with age. Time spent in play decreases with age. Time spent in specific activities increases with age. Childhood play is informal. Play is less physically active as the child grows older.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Explain the characteristics of children's play (C)	View pictures to identify characteristics of children's play. In what way does each picture illustrate a characteristic of children's play?
Each type of play makes a definite contribution to the development of the child.	Identify types of play (K)	Collect pictures of children at play to bring to class. Describe the type of play illustrated in each of your pictures.
	Explain the types of play (C)	Construct a bulletin board using illustrations collected by the class.  Classify each of the play activities according to the following categories: free spontaneous play (exploratory); dramatic play (acting out roles); creative play (music and art activities); manipulative play (building and operating toys); organized play (games and sports). Explain your selections.
A toy should meet criteria for being safe and promoting learning.	List criteria for selecting toys and play equipment (K)	View a display of toys and play equipment. Describe the type of play for which each toy might be used. For what age child would this toy be best suited? What type of learning would this toy encourage? How safe is each toy? Is the toy versatile?
	Summarize criteria for selecting toys and play equipment (C)	Summarize criteria for selecting toys and play equipment.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Prepare a check list for selecting toys and play equipment (Ap)	Work in groups to prepare a check list for selecting toys and play equipment for the following age groups: infants, toddlers (2-3 yrs.), and preschoolers (4-5 yrs.).
Ability to analyze children's toys and play equipment contributes to selection of safer, more educational toys.	Analyze children's toys and play equipment (An)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA, construct a child's toy from materials you have at home. Analyze your toy according to the criteria developed in class. Visit a toy store to find out what kinds of toys and play equipment are available. Using the check list that you helped develop, describe and rate several toys that are offered for the age group for which you have a check list. Draw conclusions about the toys available. Do you feel that homemade toys compare favorably with the ones that are commercially available? Explain your answer.
	Analyze the children's play (An)	View a film of children at play. Look for answers to the following questions: In what kinds of play were the children engaged? What toys and play equipment were provided for the children's use? What kinds of safety precautions had been taken? What kinds of learning were taking place? How did the toys and play equipment contribute to the children's play? What generalizations about children's play or play equipment can you make?

Children's books and stories should be entertaining and provide valuable learning experiences.	List purposes of children's books (K)	Brainstorm for answers to the following questions: Why is it important to provide books for children? What do children learn from books?
	Identify criteria for selecting children's books (K)	Examine a variety of recommended children's books. Describe the characteristics of each book. Compile a class list.
		Work in groups to research for criteria in selecting books for the following age groups: infants, toddlers, preschoolers.
	Give examples of children's books (C)	Give examples of your favorite book as a child. What favorable characteristics does it possess?
	Prepare a children's book (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA, make a picture book for children that meets the criteria developed in class. What may children learn from your books?
	Analyze children's books. (An)	Study a group of children's books provided by your teacher. If you were selecting a book as a birthday present for a one year old child, which one would you select? for three year old? for a five year old? Why?

The ability to tell stories effectively contributes to one's ability to work with children.	Identify story telling techniques (K)	Invite a nursery school teacher or a children's librarian to demonstrate story telling techniques. Ask her to include techniques in reading books to children, telling a flannel board story and performing finger plays.
	Summarize story telling techniques (C)	Summarize the techniques demonstrated to the class. Give examples of the use of these techniques.
	Demonstrate techniques for story telling (Ap)	Prepare a demonstration of story telling for a preschool age group. (May be done at visit to nursery school or plan a party at your school).
		Coordinating Experience: For home experience or FHA, write a short story for a child. Plan to present the story as a book, flannel board story, or finger play.
Music contributes to the development of creativity and aesthetic appreciation.	Identify criteria for selecting children's music (K)	Imagine yourself as a child. Listen to a selection of children's records. Describe your reaction to the music. Compile a class list of reactions.
		Study resources to identify criteria for selecting music for children.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	List ways music may foster creativity (K)	List ways music may foster creativity in young children.
	Give examples of creative reactions to music (C)	Give examples of children's creative reactions to music.
	Show how to make a musical instrument (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA or community activity, make a musical instrument of common objects for a small child to be used at a children's party or in a nursery school.
Art activities contribute to the development of creativity and aesthetic appreciation.	List benefits art activities provide (K)	List benefits children may receive from participation in art activities. Include the following: Children explore, discover, and relate to their world; they express feelings and knowledge and communicate ideas; they gain emotional release, develop sensitivity and perception; they experience the deep satisfaction of creating; they improve motor skills.
	Explain the characteristics of children's art (C)	Explain the characteristics of children's art such as: spontaneous, creative, free, expressive, experimental, may be meaningless to adults, and may not meet adult standards.
Numerous materials may be used in children's art activities.	Identify art materials (K)	Visit a nursery school to identify art materials available to young children.

Knowledge of factors which encourage creativity increases the child's enjoyment of art activities.	Distinguish factors that encourage creative art (An)	Outline procedures for using art materials in a creative manner. Point out adult responses that encourage creative expression.
		Point out conditions that discourage creative responses.

CONCEPT: Children in the Family--Care and Guidance of the Infant and Young Child

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Develop guidelines for the care and guidance of infants and young children (S)

Health and Safety
Health habits developed in childhood are a basis for attitudes toward personal hygiene throughout life.	Identify health habits for young children (K)  Explain development of health habits (C)	Study resources to identify health habits that young children need to develop.  Work in groups to devise a presentation for children on ways to develop good health habits. Presentation may include posters, slides, flip charts, filmstrips, skit, or puppet show.
Medical care is an important aspect of providing for the needs of the infant and young child.	Demonstrate ways to develop health habits (Ap)  Recognize the importance of professional medical care (K)  Identify types of medical care (C)  Explain the importance of professional medical care (C)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA, develop a presentation for children on ways to develop good health habits.  Listen to a presentation by a health nurse or doctor on the importance of professional medical care for infants and young children.  List the types of medical care needed by infants and young children.  Develop a poster explaining the importance of professional and medical care for infants and young children. Display at such functions as, back-to-school night, children's party, or a visit to a nursery school.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Knowledge of childhood illnesses contributes to effective child care.	Identify childhood illnesses (K)	Study resources to identify childhood illnesses and diseases.
	Cite symptoms of childhood illnesses (K)	Make a chart describing symptoms of childhood illnesses and diseases.
	Identify preventative measures for childhood illnesses (K)	Study resources to find preventative measures for each childhood illness or disease. Report to class.
	Explain preventative measures for childhood illnesses (C)	Coordinating Experience: For community activity, write a pamphlet for parents of infants and young children explaining symptoms and preventative measures for childhood illnesses and diseases.
Skill in caring for the sick child influences the child's attitudes toward illness.	Explain skills used in caring for a sick child (K)	Interview a mother to determine skills she feels necessary in caring for sick infants or young children.
	List considerations in planning entertainment for a sick child (K)	Identify factors to consider in care of a sick child. Make a list of considerations that would influence plans for entertaining a sick child.
	Explain the need for entertaining a sick child (C)	Discuss the need for entertaining a sick child.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Demonstrate a method of entertaining a sick child (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: Develop a method for entertaining a sick child. Demonstrate to the class.
Safety is an important consideration as the young child begins to explore and experiment.	Identify causes of children's accidents (K) Explain ways to prevent children's accidents (C)	View a film to identify causes of children's accidents. Explain ways of preventing children's accidents.
	Demonstrate safety practices (Ap)	Coordinating Experience: For FHA or community activity, plan a program for adults to show safety practices to prevent children's accidents.
Skill in first aid may save a child's life.	Identify first aid practices (K)	Study resources to identify first aid practices used in the care of young children.
	Summarize first aid practices (C)	Work in groups to explain selected first aid procedures.
	Demonstrate first aid practices (Ap)	Demonstrate selected first aid procedures to class.
The child who is handicapped or has a long-term illness has special needs.	Analyze the influence of a handicapped child or long-term illness upon the family (An)	Discuss the influence of a handicapped child or long-term illness of a child upon the family.

Guidance and Discipline
Guidance and discipline are essential for the health, safety, and development of the child.	Define guidance and discipline (K)	Write down your understanding of the words "guidance" and "discipline." Look up definitions of the two words in a dictionary. Were your definitions the same as the dictionary's?
		Explore references to formulate definitions of discipline and guidance in relation to child care.
	Explain the purposes of guidance and discipline (C)	Study resources to identify the purposes of guidance and write a statement explaining each purpose.
	Relate child care to successful parenthood (Ap)	Discuss how an understanding of discipline and guidance of a child such as, moral standards for behavior, responsibilities, and family rules and regulations. Include such practices as: realistic standards, opportunities to learn from mistakes, opportunities to succeed, gradual adjustment to change, unqualified love, and noting variation of acceptable behavior among cultures.

Knowing principles of discipline and guidance contributes to successful parenthood.	Identify the principles of discipline and guidance (K)	Read case studies to identify the principles of discipline and guidance. List. Include the following: guide toward development of self-confidence; give honest praise; guide constructively; and agreement between parents.
	Summarize principles of discipline and guidance (C)	Write short paragraphs to complete the following open-end statements: "I think a parent should..." and "I think a parent should not...." Share your paragraphs with classmates.
	Develop guidelines for child care and guidance (Ap)	Compile a list of guidelines on child care and guidance from the paragraphs written in class. Compare to original lists on discipline and guidance of children.
		Coordinating Experience: For community activity, volunteer to work with young children to learn more about child care and guidance.
	Give examples of good guidance and discipline (C)	Give examples of how to carry out each of the principles of discipline and guidance listed.
	Demonstrate use of principles of guidance and discipline (Ap)	Role play situations using principles of guidance and discipline.

	Analyze role play situations (An)	Analyze the application of the principles of guidance and discipline as demonstrated in each role play situation. How were the principles applied? Are there any other alternatives that could have been used? Is there only one way to handle a situation? How does the fact that each child is an individual affect the application of guidance and discipline?
Observing children at play play contributes to one's understanding of the young child.	Plan to observe children at play (S)	Plan a children's party or a visit to a nursery school to observe the stages of child development, children's play and play equipment, and guidance and discipline of young children. Observe and present findings to class.
Management Related to Children
Management of family routines contributes to effectively meeting needs of infants and children in the family.	Identify factors affecting family routine (K)  Give examples of ways to alter family routines (C)	Brainstorm for considerations that must be made in the family routine for a new baby. Make a class list.  Research to find different ways to handle each situation listed.  Explain how the amount of time, energy, and money available affect the routine of the family. How can each parent help care for the new baby?

	Demonstrate a labor saving plan in the care of an infant (Ap)	Show how to use a labor saving device or plan in the care of an infant.
	Analyze the effect of additional children on the family routine (An)	Discuss the following question: How will the family routine be affected by the addition of another child?
Community Resources and Child Care Services
Community resources aid parents in care and guidance of their children.	Cite community resources available to parents (K)	Identify community resources which contribute to successful parenthood, i.e., schools, church, PTA, recreational centers and activities, scouting programs, child care centers, Well Baby Clinics, Planned Parenthood Association, law enforcement agencies, public libraries, educational television, etc.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Explain the functions and services community resources provide for the family (C)	Visit several of the resources available in your community to learn services they provide for the care of children.

CONCEPT: Housing the Family--Significance of Housing

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Describe the influences of housing on families (C)

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Influences of Housing on Families Housing influences families physically, psychologically, socially, and emotionally.	Identify influence of housing on families (K)	Describe the feeling you had while visiting in someone else's home for the first time. What made you feel this way? Did the housing itself influence your feelings? Compare your answers with classmates.
		List influences housing has on families.
	Explain influences of housing on families (C)	Determine the influences of housing on families by discussing the following questions: What are the physical influences of housing on families? What aspects of housing reflect these? How are psychological influences of housing reflected in the design? How may social influences be reflected in a family's housing selection? How does the emotional aspect of housing affect a family's housing selection?
		Read advertisements of housing that are for sale or rent. Explain the type of appeal made to the consumer. Categorize the advertisement according to physical,

Influences of housing on families are interrelated.	Explain how influences of housing are inter-related (C)	psychological, social, or emotional appeals.  View pictures of various types of housing (mobile home, suburban house, garden apartment, high rise apartment, row house, etc.). Explain the influences each of these types of housing may have on a family. Are some of the influences interrelated? How?
Factors Influencing Housing
Human factors may influence housing.	Identify human factors influencing housing (K)	Read a case study of a family shopping for housing. Identify the human factors that influence their decision (family values, goals, and standards; stage in the family life cycle; resources; and patterns of living).
Environmental factors affect housing.	Give examples of the influence of human factors on housing (C)  List environmental factors influencing housing (K)	Describe the type of housing the case study family would select, keeping the human factors identified in mind.  List environmental factors influencing a family's housing selection (climate, social considerations, culture, technology, availability).

Individual families have special requirements which influence housing.	List special requirements in housing (K)	View a bulletin board illustrating special housing considerations for infants and young children, the elderly, and the handicapped. Discuss how each of these considerations meets their special requirements.

CONCEPT: Housing the Family--Housing Decisions

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Evaluate family housing decisions (E)

Type of Housing
Housing is found in a variety of forms.	Identify types of housing (K)	View pictures of various types of housing (house, duplex and multiplex units, row house, condominiums and cooperatives, and mobile homes).
	Explain the characteristics of each type of housing (C)	Explain the advantages and disadvantages of each type of housing.  Discuss the following questions: What factors may a family consider in selecting a type of housing? How do a family's values and standards affect their housing selection?
		Make a class list of factors to consider in housing decisions.
	Predict the kind of family for each type of housing (Ap)	Predict the kind of family that would most likely live in each type of housing.
Alternatives
Knowledge of housing alternatives contributes to effective housing decisions.	Select housing alternatives (An)	Work in groups to analyze families looking for housing. Point out the housing available to them. Select three possible housing alternatives. Explain.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Housing Evaluation
Understanding of the various aspects of housing evaluation will aid in housing selection.	Identify blueprint symbols (K)	View a transparency depicting symbols used on blueprints. Include the following: windows, doors, walls, stairways, bath and kitchen fixtures, closets and fireplace.
	Identify space and zoning areas (K)	View transparencies of the floor plans for three different types of housing such as, a house, apartment, and a mobile home. Identify the space and zoning areas in each (public or social, private or rest, and work or service).
The placement of the three housing zones influences the suitability of housing.	Explain each space and zoning area (C)	Discuss the following questions: What rooms are generally found in each zone? Is it possible for any of the zones to overlap? What period of the day will each zone most likely be used? What factors should be considered in the placement of each zone?
The convenience of housing is affected by traffic patterns.	Define "traffic patterns" in a home (K)	Define traffic patterns as they relate to housing.
	Give examples of traffic patterns in the home (C)	Work in three groups to explain traffic patterns in each of the floor plans depicted on transparencies in class. Do you see sources of possible irritations in the traffic patterns? How may the traffic patterns be altered to the placement of rooms? Why is it important to consider

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
The amount and placement of storage contributes to adequacy of housing.	Identify storage areas (K)	the placement of rooms when selecting housing for the family? Share interpretations with class.
	Give examples of storage areas (C)	List items that need to be stored in each zoning area. What kind of storage is needed for each area?
	Demonstrate needed storage areas (Ap)	Work in three groups to explain storage areas needed in each of the floor plans provided.
	Analyze storage areas (An)	Draw suggested storage areas on transparencies. Present to class.
		Analyze the placement and amount of storage areas recommended by each group. Are the storage areas located near the place where the items stored will be used most? Will the storage areas properly accommodate all of the items to be stored in that area? Are any special fittings required in any of the areas to increase efficiency? What storage problems may be related to the type of housing chosen? Suggest solutions for such problems.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Comfort in housing is affected by its orientation.	Define orientation (K)	Read from resources to answer the following question: In the study of housing, what does "orientation" mean? (Include outlook, sun, and wind.)
Housing should be planned to take advantage of the most desirable orientation.	Explain the effect of orientation on housing (C)	Discuss questions such as the following: What effect does a good, natural view have on planning housing? What effect does the absence of a good, natural view have on planning housing? What effects does the sun have on housing? How can housing be planned to take advantage of the sun? What are the advantages of the wind in housing? disadvantages? What special considerations must be made in order to take advantage of the wind and "play down" the disadvantages of the wind?
	Predict effects of orientation (Ap)	Study the three floor plans to check for orientation. Be sure to check the direction that it is facing. Predict the effects of the outlook, sun, and wind on each of the floor plans. In which types of housing does the family have the most choice of orientation? the least?
Analyze orientation (An)		Discuss: Which do you think is the best? Justify your statement. Which do you think is the worst? Justify your statement. Is it always possible to have the

Adequacy of equipment is necessary for satisfaction in housing.	Explain the importance of equipment in housing evaluation (C)	best orientation? Explain your answer. How may one compensate for a less than desirable orientation? Divide into four groups to obtain information concerning equipment in housing. Group I--Heating: List commonly used methods of heating a home. Is the initial cost of each method high? operating costs? What effect does the climate have on selection of heating equipment? What are the advantages and disadvantages of each method? For what type housing is each best suited? Group II--Cooling: List commonly used methods of cooling a home. Is the initial cost of each method high? operating costs? Does the climate have any effect on selection of cooling equipment? What are the advantages and disadvantages of each? For what type housing is each best suited? Group III--Electrical System: Why is it important to be sure housing has an adequate electrical system? How can you find out about the adequacy of the electrical system? Group IV--Plumbing System: What is an adequate plumbing system? Why is it important to have an adequate plumbing system? How can you find out if the plumbing system is adequate? Share

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Satisfaction with housing decisions is affected by ability to evaluate construction quality.	Identify construction methods (K)	findings with class. Draw conclusions about the importance of evaluating housing equipment. View a film or pictures illustrating conventional and new methods of constructing houses, apartments, and mobile homes. Coordinating Experience: Write a paper describing what you think the housing of tomorrow will look like. Include drawings to illustrate your ideas.
	Explain ways to judge quality construction (C)	Read resources to determine quality features in construction that affect selection of houses, apartments and mobile homes.
	Analyze quality of construction (An)	Visit a model home, house, mobile home, or apartment that is for sale or rent in your community. Using the list of quality construction features developed by the class, analyze the quality of the construction.

Various architectural styles are available to satisfy tastes of different families.	Interpret true architectural style and adaptations (C)	Discuss how each person analyzed the quality of construction. Is there any relationship between cost and quality of construction? How can the quality of construction affect a family's evaluation of housing? Under what conditions may construction not be a major consideration?
		View pictures or slides of architectural styles and adaptations of these styles (Example: Spanish Renaissance and "Spanish Flair" homes). Explain the difference between the original style and the adaptation. Why were the styles adapted?
	Give examples of architectural styles (C)	Coordinating Experience: Collect pictures of architectural styles. Explain the type of style. What are the features that appeal to you? Why?
Satisfaction with housing location is influenced by zoning, neighborhood and proximity.	Identify city zoning regulations (K)	Interview a city councilman or official to identify city zoning regulations, if any. Report findings to class.
	Explain reasons for zoning regulations (C)	Identify the reasons cities have zoning regulations. How do city zoning regulations affect a family's selection of housing?

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
Understanding the interior and exterior factors that influence housing selection may contribute to satisfaction with housing decisions.	Identify influence of neighborhood on housing selections (K)	Brainstorm to determine influence the neighborhood has upon a family's selection of housing.
	Recognize influence of proximity on selection of housing (K)	Consider reasons some families feel it important to live close to their work or school and why some families do not.
	Identify exterior factors influencing housing selection (K)	Determine what considerations on the exterior of the housing would influence housing selection (yard care and maintenance, exterior housing finishes, driveway, busyness of the street, proximity of neighbors, etc.).
	List interior factors influencing housing selection (K)	List factors in the interior of housing that would influence selection such as, floor plan, traffic patterns, lighting, storage areas, needs and activities of family, etc.
Financial and Legal Decisions	Recognize safety features in housing (K)	View a film to identify safety features in housing. Compile a class list of safety features that were shown in the film.
	Identify financial and legal aspects of housing (K)	Invite a resource person to discuss the financial and legal aspects of housing. Ask him such questions as: What are advantages and disadvantages of renting? buying? What are insurance needs when

Knowledge of furnishings and equipment costs contribute to realistic housing decisions.	Identify costs of furnishings and equipment (K)	renting? buying? What are costs in operating and maintaining a house? an apartment? a mobile home? How may these costs be reduced? What costs may a landlord be expected to pay?
	Explain ways to reduce furnishings and equipment costs (C)	List furnishings and equipment needed by a newlywed couple. From advertisements, estimate cost of each item. If all equipment and furnishings were purchased new, what would be the cost?
	Demonstrate ways of reducing furnishings and equipment cost (Ap)	Brainstorm for ways of reducing the cost of furnishings and equipment.
		Work in groups to find inexpensive furnishings for a first apartment. Visit secondhand stores, thrift shops, etc. Consider items not usually used for furniture and do-it-yourself projects.
		Coordinating Experience: Follow through with a low cost do-it-yourself project to provide a needed item for your home.
Housing decisions are influenced by a variety of factors.	Determine points to consider in housing decisions (An)	Construct a list of guidelines for selecting housing. Consider the points discussed in class.

	Plan housing selection (S)	Work in groups to plan or select housing for a case study family. Explain housing selection.
	Appraise housing selection (E)	Evaluate each group's decision in class according to guidelines developed.

CONCEPT: Food for the Family--Social and Psychological Aspects

OVERALL OBJECTIVE: Evaluate social and psychological influences of food on the family (E)

----------------------------------------	------------------------------	--------------------------------------------

Significance of Food

Food is important in different ways to different individuals.

Recognize the meaning of food (K)

Describe what food means to the following people: homemaker, head of the house, farmer, grocer, and yourself.

Explain the need for food (C)

Discuss the following questions: Has there ever been a time when you were served food you did not want to eat, but did? Why? Why do persons cook? Have you ever eaten food when you were not hungry? Why?

Eating Habits

Explain uses of food (C)

Summarize good and poor eating habits (C)

List good and poor eating habits.

Subconcepts and Generalizations	Behavioral Objectives	Learning and Evaluation Experiences
	Demonstrate consequences of poor eating habits (Ap)	Work in groups to present illustrations depicting the consequences of poor eating habits.
	Analyze influence of eating habits (An)	Discuss such questions as: How will parents' eating habits affect their children's eating habits? How may parents encourage their children to eat a balanced diet? Is there a need for parents to eat a variety of foods? Why or why not?
Eating habits determine an individual's level of nutrition.	Analyze the effect of poor eating habits (An)	Read a case study of a person who has poor eating habits. Analyze how his poor eating habits may affect those around him.  Describe a poor eating habit you have. Explain how you developed this eating habit. How will this poor eating habit affect your health? appearance? family? friends?
Family Relationships
Family relationships at mealtime are influenced by a variety of factors.	Give examples of family relationships at mealtime (C)	Give examples from television programs, movies, or stories of family relationships at mealtimes.

	Predict influences on family relationships at mealtime (Ap)	Discuss the following questions: What may have influenced the family's mealtime relationships in the examples cited previously? Were there any family customs, routines, values or standards revealed? Explain.
	Analyze influences on family mealtimes (An)	Identify customs that your family observes at mealtime. What customs would you like to continue in your own family? Knowledge of factors to consider may aid a woman in deciding whether she should work.	Point out factors for a woman to consider before assuming a dual role (An)	Work in groups to write a "Dear Abby" column with letters written by women who are assuming dual roles or who are considering assuming dual roles and answers to the letters. Be sure to include situations in which the following questions are answered: Why may working women need to re-evaluate their values, goals, and standards? How may family values, goals, and standards influence a mother's decision to work? How may family values, goals, and standards be altered by a working mother? How may use of available resources need to be reassessed? Why does a working woman especially need to identify her needs and wants? How do dual roles affect goal achievements? How may family members help solve management problems caused by dual roles? Who should manage family earnings? How? Discuss the following questions: What are some ways cooperation among family members may be achieved? Why is this important? Do some roles have more status than others? Can the status of roles be changed? How? Does the acceptance of dual roles by family members affect the maintenance of satisfactory family relationships? How? Why? What individual and social adjustments must be made when accepting dual roles? What
